FOREWORD

E, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-three, present this "STUDENT" with our greetings to Mr. Davis, Mr. Meade, to the faculty, and to the student-body of Port Huron High School. For the graduates and former students of our school we trust this book may be a happy reminder of their high school days. Our greetings to all.

TO THE ALUMNI of Port Huron High School, whose example and help on all occasions has inspired us in the collecting and editing of this "Student" this book is gratefully dedicated.

To H. A. D.

Amid the throng a man of earnest mien,
Yet with a glance that glows from gladness oft,
And kindly voice that rings in accents keen
When cause demands, in sympathy grows soft,
A man's man in the world, a child's good friend,
One who takes thought for bird and beast as well,
In Learning's realm whose labor knows no end,
—Its golden fruits full many a youth can tell—:
Such is the faithful teacher, friend and guide
To whom these lines we loyally address,
Feeling that with this leader true and tried
Our civic task grows plain, its weight far less.
To him we would our modest tribute give,
With praise for noble work that long will live.

President's Message

To us for the first time comes the real meaning of graduation. It brings with it the fruits of victory, but takes from us many of the influences that have been our comforter in time of trouble and defeat, and our guidance in time of success. It takes from us that unity that has made us the Class of '23 and leaves us as individuals to battle our own way to further success. The influences of our school life will mean much towards our goal. These influences are ours. During the four years in school they have become a part of our life. Probably the greatest of these has been our class motto: "To say is to do," the significance of which is readily understood, the value of which has been proved by associating it with the four years of our school career.

Let endeavor, effort and determination be the materials of which our stairway to success is built. Let "To say is to do" be the safety rail upon which we may lean in times of danger or despair and let every landing between the flights of our stairway be a degree of success. Then as we ascend step by step, flight by flight each succeeding landing will be more difficult to reach, more dangerous, but if our means of ascension are uniformly constructed the danger of slipping, or falling back, is lessened.

We have climbed safely to one landing, and have become familiar with the way to success.

Let us, the Class of 1923, remember, "To say is to do." Let us say we will climb steadily upward, and:

"Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing
Learn to labor and to wait."

Roy BRIGGS.

Class History

In the fall of the year 1919, there were admitted to the confines of the High School about one hundred and thirty-six ambitious youngsters, eager to become acquainted with their dreamland.

They were all coralled into Rooms A, H and A and placed under the care of the Misses Carlisle and Kress. As soon as they had come to know each other, they chose the following officers:

President—Russell Wonderlic. Secretary—Doris DeGraw.
Vice-President—Jean Laird. Treasurer—John Ottaway.

These officers were all from the Auditorium, and in the second semester another election was held with the following result:

President—Louis Weil. Secretary—Irma Burns.
Vice-President—Mary McKay. Treasurer—Hugh Ross.

Miss Carlisle was their legal guardian.

That year there were two parties. The Freshman-Senior function was their debut into High School social circles and a noteworthy event it was. This was followed with their own class party which was the crowning event of the year, due to the advisers patient efforts and likewise a tremendous success.

Thoroughly refreshed by the summer vacation, most of the class came back for another round in the school of knowledge and entered into the duties and dignities of Sophomores with John Ottaway and Irma Burns leading them, Charlene Shiland keeping the books, and Paul Soini the money.

The party that year was a dinner-dance and a huge success in every particular.

After waiting anxiously for three months everyone was glad to enter Miss Woodward's room and prepare for the climax of High School life, viz: that of being a Senior.

In accordance with their democratic principles they were the first class to choose a girl for leader, Jean Laird, with Charlene Shiland as assistant. Malcolm Charlton was the financier and Ruth Norton took notes on their fiery class meetings.

The Juniors held a modest party for their own flock near Christmas and later they entertained the Seniors in a most sumptuous fashion. Decorating the Junior High "Gym" with Spanish moss and floor lamps and with an excellent orchestra, the party was said by all to have excelled even the yearly "June Hop" in originality and excellency.

The Senior year was both a joy and a sorrow—sorrowful that they must work harder than they had ever worked before and joyful that they had at last attained a position of authority among the student body.

Roy Briggs led their activities with Malcolm Wright as Vice-President, Doris DeGraw as Secretary, and Grant McDonald as money-changer. Miss Northrup and Mr. Meade were the efficient advisers.

The class recognized the need of student control in the halls and worked out a plan satisfactorily. They organized and kept up a Science Club, a Debating Club and interscholastic debating.

In all their High School career they were said to have been one of the best classes and they will leave Port Huron High School having profited by four years of education well fitted to pursue further their student work or to enter the various walks of life.

MALCOLM CHARLTON-'23.

Our Seniors

I.

Early in September on one Monday morn, The high-school views to a Freshman were born. When the hour approached for classes to pass, These Freshmen were frightened—as green as grass.

TT

As weeks passed on and months went by,
They realized they had been too shy
To ever become students of worth
To join the crowd, and take part in the mirth.

III.

So they started right in to study with zest And when they did a thing, did it their best. That was the spirit that gave them their name, Built up their knowledge and sent forth their fame.

IV.

And now they are Seniors and dignified, too; Their minds full of business and hearts full of trath. They'll ne'er be forgotten at old Port Huron High, These students who at first were so timid and shy.

RUTH FRILAY.

J. Waldo Baer-He finds enjoyment in teasing others.

KATHLEEN LETITIA GRAY—"In speech and jesture, form and face, Showed she was come from a gentle race."

IVA MAE BENNER-"I do not fear to follow out the truth."

LEONARD VERNON SIMMS—"Graced thou art with all the power of words."

MARGARET WATSON—Your gentleness moves more than does your force.

MARTHA S. CAREY-A maid with a mind of her own.

GRANT McDonald-A man of pure and simple heart.

Frances E. Brown—She can best express her thoughts in terms of music.

HAZEN GRAVLIN-His countenance reveals his seriousness of thought.

GRACE JONES—"She tastes the joy that springs from labor."

MARY HELEN SOMERS—"To be joyful is a virtue."

CLARENCE E. FROST—"Words are but breath."

Alma Green—"She talks so incessantly that the echo hasn't a fair chance."

Russell Charles Wonderlic—"Speech is a golden harvest."

ELLEN M. WILCOX-Her complexion wins, when words fail.

Pansy Naomi Howse-What she does, is right, you may depend on't.

MAYME C. MACQUEEN—"A maiden never bold of spirit, still and quiet."

A. CLAIR COOPER—I have only done my duty.

KATHLEEN ISABELLE McCLELLAN—She is not forward, but modest and patient in disposition.

Dorothy Jessie Martin—"There's little of the melancholy element in her."

GERTRUDE E. SINCLAIR—"That of her smiling was full simple and coy."

GEORGE W. SICKLES-Sleep is my delight.

RUTH C. Sperry—"'Tis virtue makes the bliss wherein we dwell."

Roy Briggs-"A living example of solemnity and dignity."

CHARLENE ELIZABETH SHILAND—She knew whatever was to be known,

But more by far than she would ever own.

JACK A. BEAMER—"An honest man's the noblest work of God."

Edna Harriet Roberts-Good natured and with a kind word for all.

SARAH ELLEN WASS-She who tries to be happy is sure to succeed.

The National Honor Society of Secondary Schools

THIS organization which came into existence a few years ago, is the result of an attempt to do for secondary schools what the Phi Beta Kappa has done for the colleges of the country. To be elected to Phi Beta Kappa in college is an honor much prized by college students and the possibility of election is a real stimulus to scholarship. The need of some similar organization among high schools has long been recognized. It is the belief of those who have sponsored the National Honor Society that it will meet this need.

The constitution of our chapter defines the object of the Society as follows: "To create an enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote worthy leadership, and to encourage the development of character and scholarship in the pupils of the Port Huron High School."

Election to membership is therefore, based upon character, scholarship, service, and leadership.

To be eligible to membership a student must rank in the upper one-fourth of his class. Election cannot take place earlier than the last semester of the Junior year when a limited number may be chosen. Altogether, not more than 15 per cent of any class may be elected to membership. Most of them will be chosen in the Senior Year.

The Chapter Council, consisting of the Principal and four members of the faculty elects the members.

The local chapter was organized at Commencement time last year. Application for a Charter was made at once but the Charter was not received until December 7, 1922. This Charter has been suitably framed and hangs in the office of the Principal.

The charter members of the local chapter were:

EUNICE EICHHORN EMILY STEWART

PHYLLIS TURNBULL EDWARD STEPHENS

IRMA BURNS LOUIS WEIL, JR.

ESTHER DUFFIN KATHERINE PHILBRICK

ELIZABETH THOMAS FRED STURMER
JOHN CONGO ESTHER PACE

NATALIE MOORE MARGUERITE BOARDMAN

The members elected from the class of 1923 are as follows:

GRACE JONES ISABEL COWAN

CHARLENE SHILAND FLETCHER MEADE

RUTH STEELE RUTH NORTON

Lyal Howison Paul Soini

GERTRUDE SINCLAIR MARGUERITE CRAWFORD

The Swamp Angel

"T HERE!" sighed Betty Sherman, as she bound off the last stitch on the blue and orange sweater that lay in her lap. "I could yell for joy. Come on Juddy, let's celebrate!"

Her companion's yawn was abruptly interrupted when Betty leaped from the porch swing spilling pillows and knitting needles in all directions. "Well," she said lazily, "What's the celebration to be? As a guest, I am curious what these wilds of Michigan will reveal in order to merit the name of 'celebration'."

Betty sat down upon the nearest chair and looked for a long minute at her friend. Judith Morrison's ignorance of what she called "the wilds of Michigan" puzzled Betty but, finally, with a nod of her sunny head she started to pick up the cluttered porch swing.

"For an educated young miss from Boston, you are giving me a very poor impression and if you wish to redeem yourself in my eyes, be sport enough to do this wild (?) stunt. I suppose it does seem like a queer existence to you—this vacation in Northern Michigan—but I really love it so that I thought you would, too."

At the disappointed look in Betty's eyes, Juddy reached over and hugged her friend. "You know well enough, Bettykins, that I am having the time of my life and that I just hate the thought of going back to Boston next week. What are we going to do as a novel way of celebrating your completed sweater?"

With a chuckle, Betty rose to her feet, dragging Judith after her. "Come on, we must tell Mumsy that we are going to the Swamp Angel's house."

Without more ado, the two girls left the Sherman cottage for the walk through the Sapphire Lake Camp which had been formed years before by a group of friends who appreciated the exceptional beauty of Sapphire Lake. The twenty-one cottages were set among the ancient white pines and Norways that had been preserved by the original founders and constituted what might be called "an ideal summer resort." The Association conducted a common dining-hall in which every family had its own table but which gave a complete rest to the women folk of the Camp.

Betty and Judith soon traversed the winding path down through the camp to the western end of the Association property and came out upon an obscure path leading into the lower and more densely wooded country.

"Who in the world is the 'Swamp Angel?" " asked Judith, as she scrambled over a rotted log in the path.

"She's our own special mystery, straight from mystery land," exclaimed Betty, sliding the last few feet of the downward trail covered with slippery pine needles, but when she had gained her feet again, she went on to say. "The Swamp Angel's real name is Mrs. Matthews. Years ago when all this country was covered with logging camps, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews bought some land from a speculator—a crook—for the purpose of starting a chicken-ranch. I suppose to those folks in crowded Chicago—that's where they came from—the highly pictured life in Northern Michigan, together with the fine maps which this fraud probably showed them, was enough to induce them to invest their last few hundred dollars in a chicken-ranch. Dad says there have been stacks of folks fooled on this chicken-ranch idea. And I guess it's so, too, 'cause most any place you want to drive around this country you can find deserted chicken ranches with their long, unused chicken houses.

"Well, anyway, this Mr. and Mrs. Matthews got up here and found that their future chicken ranch was in the middle of Sapphire Lake! Of course, there wasn't a thing for them to do but settle down at one of the lumber camps where Mr. Matthews could fell logs rather than raise chickens. Everything went along pretty smoothly for several years except for a few family scraps once in a while. Folks say that this Mrs. Matthews used to be an awfully dirty woman even in those days—you can judge for yourself when you see her—and that her husband used to take her down to the shore when she got too bad, and souse her around in the lake.

"But one winter Mr. Matthews must have begun to long for the bright lights of the city so he made the most of his opportunity when it came along. The camp boss sent Mr. Matthews out to the nearest town for supplies giving him quite a sum of money. That was the last of Mr. Matthews."

"What happened to her?" queried Juddy.

"Well, you see, nobody gave her any money so she is still here. We are not far from her shack now. No one knows her age exactly but she must be pretty old. She still does washings for some of the women at the camps. Usually she goes through camp several times during a summer but no one has seen her this year. She dresses in black, goes bare-footed, and trundles a one-handed wheel-barrow that has a little squeak all its own. Mrs. Matthews is quite up-to-date, having bobbed her hair, but a few of the modern ideas of sanitation would help her mansion in the woods. Just for an example of what you're going to see, I will warn you that she lives with her pigs and chickens during the winter."

Betty turned in order to enjoy the look of horror that appeared on her Bostonian friend's face, but a few yanks of her fluffy hair caused by a thorny bush turned her straight around again.

The path gradually ran down into a low, piney woods, where the sob of the wind in the pines made a fitting accompaniment for the shifting shadows and the almost death-like silence.

Soon the weather-beaten little one-room shack came into view, situated somewhat lower down than the path. As they neared a shelter constructed of rotten boards which extended forward from the hollowed-out bank side, Betty led Judith down past the shed whose odor reminded one of some past experience with the pig family.

"Day by day, in every way, the smell gets worse and worse," whispered Judith, hardly realizing that she spoke below her breath.

"Wait!" replied Betty.

About forty or fifty feet from where they stood, the house was plainly visible. The outside was clearly used as a store house. At the left of the one high step, stood a huge barrel filled with chestnuts from which a cheeky little chipmunk scampered as the girls drew near. Pails of sour milk and garbage stood nearby. At the right of the house, a fuzzy old hen was clucking to her wayward brood, entreating them to use caution and to return to the coop—such as it was. The unevenly hung door was fastened on the outside with a piece of frayed rope and a rusty nail. Three grimy windows with an occasional rotten screen, gave an impression of age which rivalled that of the hoary trees surrounding.

Betty boldly stepped up to the door, knocked, and called: "Mrs. Mathews!"

Only the impervious silence answered. Dauntlessly, Betty tried again but with similar success. The stillness imitated that of the two girls.

Clearing her throat, Betty remarked, "Well, I guess Mrs. Matthews isn't home, but we can look around anyway."

Judith, nothing loath, placed her cupped hands at the front window and peered within. For a second or two all was black but then, the faint outlines of a small stove were visible. A pan of decidedly ancient biscuits reigned in state on top of the stove. With the head toward the stove, a poorly constructed bed could be seen and as Juddy gave a second glance, she gasped, and shrank from the window.

"Betty! that woman's in bed in there! She looks awful! Oh, look quick!"

With little urging, Betty took her stand at the opening, but being more familiar with the shack, she found the bed with greater haste. Yes, Juddy was right. An emaciated hand and arm laid above the plaided quilt and the wasted form could be traced among the bunched blankets.

"Do you suppose she can be dead?" gasped Juddy, as Betty turned towards her.

"She's either dead or very ill. I've always thought she would probably die off here by herself and no one would know it. Her hand looks as though she had been dead for some time."

"If she were sick, she would have answered us when we called," added Juddy, instinctively drawing nearer Betty.

"I ought to go in," meditated Betty.

"No, it's awful in there. We had better go home and get someone." exclaimed Juddy, thinking only of herself.

"Yes, but she might be sick and die while we were gone. I'm going to open the door, at least, and then I can see better."

"Don't go in, Betty. Just look and then we will go and get somebody from camp."

With a deaf ear, Betty unfastened the door and pushing it slowly open, stood a minute stock still. A shaft of sunlight fell upon the floor filthy to the worst degree, but this was not the reason for Betty's silence. In the bed among the fagged quilts, which dragged the greasy floor, and in which all the sordid mess of the place seemed to center, lay—nothing.

With a smothered cry, which sent Juddy rushing along the path homeward, Betty emerged from the doorway, fastened the string to the nail, and followed Juddy.

Class Prophecy

Pontiac Insane Asylum, Pontiac, Michigan, April 1, 1936.

MY DEAR CHARLENE:—Driven insane by the attempt to figure the number of calories I had eaten a day, together with the constant work of exercising morning and night, I have been here for many years and have spent my periods of sanity in tracing the careers of my classmates of '23.

I am sending this information, hoping that you can use it in the plot of some novel. The last book of yours, I was allowed to read, proved to me that your widely discussed fame is not the raving of insane people.

Who is your publisher now? Have you tried Andy? He is the renowned editor of the "Lighthouse," which magazine is too deep for us inmates.

You may be interested in knowing that once a month, we are taken to the Trinity Church of which Dr. Grant McDonald is pastor. The last Sunday we heard an interesting sermon, "Politics and Religion," during which he incidentally mentioned Russell Wonderlic and Leonard Simms as conducting a model contest for the honor of State Senator. Speaking with the minister, I learned that these are greatly assisted by their wives, Gertrude Sinclair and Frances Huntly respectively.

Talking of married couples, brings to my mind that Fred Wargowsky and Mildred Smith are living contentedly on a "honey" farm just south of here. Waldo Baer has made quite a success as road commissioner at Lansing. His wife, "Katy" Gray, takes great interest in his work. In finding this information I learned of the sad death of Jean Laird, who died of a broken heart.

I find that "Stew" Fenner is the Ambassador to Rome, while "Dutch" Wright is selling Ford tractors at Croswell and making a fortune.

We have had two very successful entertainments here within the last year. Jack Beamer, the successor of Paul Whitman, came with his Jazz helpers, George Hamilton, being among them. Previous to this was "Bill" Hutchinson's Spanish Follies. These two famous entertainers were brought here under the auspices of Clinto Clemo who, having been made rich by the discovery of oil, has contributed money for that purpose.

By the way, have you ever tried Onyx Hosiery? A salesman whom I afterwards learned was Paul Soini, sold many pairs here. This reminds me that Dean Urmy has become the most popular chiropodist in Detroit.

Did you know that Eugene Moak has been hired as Superintendent of the Port Huron Schools? His able secretary is Alma Greene. I have found that quite a few of our classmates have become teachers. Doris DeGraw is the chief instructor at the Chicago Institute of Physical Training; Ruth Sperry and Isabelle McClellan, kindergarten teachers in Port Huron; Marion Smith, head of the Spanish Department of the new High School; Edna Roberts, teacher in Marine City; Malcolm Charlton, President of Olivet; Joye Minor, a successful music teacher and Julia Elliot, influenced by the work of Miss Fraser, a proficient school music instructor.

On my way here, I rode on the train of which railroad Roy Briggs is the President. Rose makes, as Roy declares, an ideal wife.

George Sickles has established a flourishing undertaking business and furnishes good business for Eldon Duncan, who is a Lakeside caretaker.

Among the business girls of our class is Marguerite Gruel, proprietoress of the largest cafeteria in Detroit. Gertrude Pressprich is living a life of retired ease, having secured a fortune by the commercialization of a true complexion cream. Helen Somers is a chemist at Park Davis Company's laboratories. Grace Jones and Ethel Dale have formed a partnership in the candy business. Pansy Howse is the chief librarian at Mount Clemens. Quinnith Hamlin and Wilola Ashley are running a fashionable hat shop in Philadelphia. Marguerite Crawford is spending this year in the mountains in New Hampshire. Dorothy Wulfman is an important woman in the W. B. A. Phyllis Eichhorn is the owner of a prosperous tea shop in Boston. Isabel Ballentine has gained a name for herself at the Grand Rapids Bar. Speaking of Isabel, I can not help but think of Fred, who, following in the footsteps of his father, conducts the Drug Store at Griswold and Military streets. Dorothy Martin has realized all our hopes as an illustrator of the American Magazine.

One of the attractions at the Detroit Opera House this winter was Selina Harbaugh in her latest stage success, "Broken Hearts." Hugh Ross, her husband, is her business manager. As an added feature was Vivian Scott, famous soprano accompanied by Frances Brown.

Harold Cochran, assisted by Isabell Cowan, often visits us for the purpose of X-Raying our demented minds in a search for a perfect fool.

Up to the time of her marriage to the Professor of Economics at M. A. C., Ruth Norton was a settlement worker.

I saw in the Detroit Free Press that Elizabeth Thompson has just sailed for India, where she will resume her missionary work.

I heard that Cornelius Gabler was making himself popular as coach at the U. of M. Letta does not complain of his work.

You probably know of the success Fletcher Meade has obtained as the corporation lawyer for Proctor & Gamble.

Hazen Gravelin furnishes his wife, Eleanor Beale, with pretty clothes, being a salesman for the National Biscuit company. After several years at home fixing up her hope chest, Dorothy Manuel married a millionaire of New York City and since then has been traveling extensively.

Margaret Watson is keeping house for her brother, James, who has become a rival of the Fuller Brush company with his famous Watson brushes.

As President of the American Shoe Association, Fred McElroy is a well known business man in California.

I saw by the paper just this morning that Horace Schnakenburg has completed a successful lecture tour, using as his topic, "Diet and Health."

On Ellis Island may be found John Howard as immigration inspector. Omar Hill is the overly married man of our class, who has just led to the altar his sixth wife. The bridesmaids were Margaret Hand, Sarah Wass and Anna James.

Millie Klumpp and Lyal Howison are making a fortune with their wheat crops in Minnesota.

Clarence Frost, delighted with his graduation picture of 1923, has gone into the business.

Mayme MacQueen died last year, after a happy married life.

Valere Graham is another fortunate classmate, who married a prosperous business man.

Victor Hooper, who carries on a thriving taxi service, is married to Ruth Frilay.

I feel another fit of insanity coming on, so hasten to sign myself.

Your ever loving nut,

RUTH LILIAN STEELE.

P. S.—Will let you know about any I may have left out when my mind becomes settled.—R. L. S.

To-night

Like a calm, kind queen
With jewels set in her crown,
Night creeps upon us unawares
Through sunset fires around.

The glory of the passing day
The misty vales below
The mountains rising 'gainst the sky
Are hidden in your softer glow.

Noiseless as the soul in passing You glade is lost to view; Another day and night are blended By mystery known to you.

—C. E. S. '23

The Rising of The Moon

The earth lies calm
With bated breath,
The waters seem to sleep;
A splash of oars
And all is still.

The night grows brighter,
A cricket chirps,
The stars grow dimmer yet.
The moon, slow-rising into view
Upon the world looks down.

The trees are black upon the shore, Each isle is tinged with light. A rising breeze stirs in the wood As if a sigh escaped, And leaf and wave respond.

—C. E. S. '23.

Class Will

W E, the Class of 1923, being of sound mind and memory, make, publish and declare this to be our Last Will and Testament, in manner following, viz:

We, hereby, devise and bequeath all property, personal or public, which we may own at the time of our graduation, as follows, to-wit:

To the Junior Class we devise and bequeath our good behavior, sweet disposition and especially our brains.

To the school in general we leave our high marks and perfect record as a goal for subsequent classes to strive for.

To next year's classes in English 7 and 8 we willingly bequeath all copies of Haleck and "When that Aprille" which are found in the building after June 20, 1923.

To Mr. Meade we leave the balance of funds left in the class treasury which is to be used to install an elevator for transportation of tired Sophomores and Juniors who are now forced to submit to the indignity of using the stairs in order to go from one floor to the other.

Moreover, we make the following bequests which, though they may seem trifling and deserving of small consideration, are nevertheless given in a spirit of benevolence and sympathy for we have fully considered the humble ones who are to receive these reminders of our now fading glory and wish to help them as much as possible in the struggle which they are about to undertake.

To John Doig we leave Omar Hill's puny stature.

Malcolm Charlton and Russell Wonderlic leave their ability in extemperaneous debating (especially in class meetings) to Miles Benedict and Dick Minnie in hopes that they will profit by it and make the debating team next year.

Harold Cochran leaves his ability as a Chevrolet mechanic to Calvin Mathews.

To Laura Howard, Letta Peters bequeaths her quiet manner and gentle voice.

Mabel Clement and Alma Green leave their typewriting records and skill in care of Mrs. Beaukema with instructions that they be equally distributed among members of next year's commercial classes.

Mayme MacQueen and Jean Laird leave their college "men" to Marguerite Rawlings and Margaret Durand.

To George Aikman, John Howard leaves his little vest-pocket volume on "How I became a Prize Mellons-Food Baby."

Dean Urmy bequeaths his style of haircuts to Frank Schell.

Frances Huntley leaves her dramatic talent to next year's leading lady and her proficiency to the girls in charge of next year's cafeteria.

Fred Ballentine regretfully leaves Marion Bower to the tender mercies of Gerard MacKenzie.

Grant MacDonald, Grace Jones, Ethel Dale and Pansy Howse wish to leave their large collection of "A's" to be sprinkled throughout the whole school.

To Mike Benedict, Bill Hutchinson leaves his method of wearing a derby so that his ears produce a loving cup effect.

Andrew Robertson bequeaths his popularity with the fair sex to Cabbie Mathews, his journalistic and scholastic ability to Cazamer Crouch and his proficiency in making announcements to Willard Blackney.

Rose and Ruth Sperry leave their high grades in Physics to Alberta Hoffman and Donna MacQueen.

Elizabeth Thompson relinquishes Earl to the Tender and Loving care of Adeline Cisky.

Hughie Ross and George Sickles leave their athletic ability to Marshall Stacey and Ray Fox.

Katie Grey wills her place in the choir on Sundays to Bertha Palmer.

Victor Hooper leaves his lumberjack shirt to Fred Cowan.

Ernest Baldwin leaves his position as hall policeman to Alvin Vogelei and his bicycle to Russell Tudhope so that he (Russell) can get to school on time.

Waldo Baer bequeaths his fondness for auburn hair to Betty Hamel.

We bestow Gertrude Sinclair's giggle and Leonard Simm's laugh on Gabel MacCowan.

To Cecil Turner, Stew Fenner leaves his style of combing his hair.

Cornelius Gabler leaves a large supply of old shoes, size 12½, to be held as a trust by each Senior Class until some one comes along who can wear them.

Fae Turner leaves her prowess in devouring Mr. Wrigley's products to Marion Smith.

Harold Hazelton leaves his characteristic walk to Jed Walters and his eating record of 17 hot-dogs to Sam. Howard.

Phyllis Eichhorn and Selina Harbaugh leave their skill at tennis to Margaret St. Denis and Bessie Coyle.

George Sickles bequeaths his position as general Poh-Bah of the school to the best six men in the Junior Class, with the sincere wish that the duties of the said officers may not prove too burdensome to them.

Eugene Moak leaves his large supply of self assurance to David Drescher and his positions as friend and companion of a Sophomore Girl to Harold Newman.

To Ruth Frilay is bequeathed the brilliant mathematical ability of Isabel Ballentine with the silent tip to keep out of the College Algebra Class.

We hereby appoint Mrs. Halstead and Mr. Sweitzer of Port Huron High School, Executors of this, our Last Will and Testament.

Lastly, we hereby revoke all former wills by us at any time made.

In Witness Whereof, We have hereunto set our hands and seal this twentieth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three.

Room "M"

Here's to Rose serene and neat, The only fault-her large feet; With hurried step, and head flung high We see her as she passes by. And here's to Letta, please don't fret, You surely will win "Gabie" yet. Phyllis, Oh Phyllis, where art thou With your big bright eyes and your cupid's bow? There is Margret Watson who appears on the screen, As gentle and loving as any dove ever seen. Here's our fair-haired young idol, whom each girl adores, He's the center of attraction when he appears at the door. ("Gabie"). Here with lagging step, and nod of his head, Comes Hugh Ross, who wishes he were home in bed. And now with a hop, a skip, and a step, Comes Andy, who displays real High School pep. And here's to Maurice Roach who aspires high, Whose ambition is to rise above others, or at least to try. And look at Freddy Wargowsky, oh my what a face! When he stops blowing the clarinet tho', the wrinkles erase. Now, Gertrude Sinclair, will you please stop your chatter Until someone finds out what really's the matter? And, Doris, have you any more anti-suffragette views? If so, please reveal them, for others to use. Good gracious, is Fred McElroy sleeping again? Well, I see where someone presents you with a "Big Ben." Look at Maxine's new ear-rings, how they jangle and twirl! It has often been said jewelry does make the girl. And Charlene, who is ever so kind, wise and true, We certainly take off our hats to you. Did I just hear someone say, "Oh, my what a joke!" He has at last successfully taken Fletcher Meade's goat!" And who is this girl with the twinkling eyes? That's Frances Huntley whom all recognize as the "old fashioned girl." And into the room briskly walks a young girl Whose light fluffy bobbed hair desires so to curl, Don't you recognize Jean with her eyes so blue? And last, but not least, we immediately spy, Wm. Hutchinson's lock, and his jaz-bow tie. The others, dear me! If you only could see What a dreadful task you have given me. There are at least a hundred Seniors or more, And I've only named about twenty and four.

But the others, I'm certain you've met somewhere before,
And anyway, there goes the gong—how they rush for the door.
It is time for the classes, yes indeed, there they go,
Those who are peppy and those that are slow.
They smile and laugh with the friends they pass,
While on their way to their first hour class.
Another gong, and all is still,
And each one starts his day's work with good will.
We turn once more with sadness and gloom,
To bid farewell to the Senior room.

To the Tardy Ones

Come all ye tardy, a new fear is ringing,
With thought of the "office," fiercely bringing.
Rouse up! Rouse up! Nor let the alarm clock keep saying—
"You're late this morning by your delaying."
But heed to the birds' songs,
And rise when the sun dawns—
In through your window, and shines on your face.
Be joyful and full of pep,
Make time count, step by step
And say as you hurry-up
Late?—Nevermore!

SELINA HARBAUGH.

"Come Out of the Kitchen"

THIS year an ingenious comedy, "Come Out of the Kitchen," will be presented on June 5th at the Majestic Theatre, by the Senior Class of '23. Under the supervision of Miss Ninita Mayne, this sparkling play seems to promise an unusual success.

The story of "Come Out of the Kitchen," is written around a Virginia family of the old aristocracy, who, finding themselves temporarily embarassed, decide to rent their home to a rich Yankee. In accordance with the lease of the well-to-do New Englander, a competent staff of white servants should be engaged for his sojourn at this stately home. The insurmountable difficulties which they face in the servant problem, are overcome by Olivia Daingerfield, the ring-leader of the family, who conceives the plan of substituting herself, her sister, and two brothers, as the servants. When Burton Crane, the Northerner arrives, accompanied by Mrs. Falkner, her daughter, and Crane's attorney, Tucker, they find a staff of servants unlike any they have ever experienced. Though the complications that arise interfere somewhat with the romance of Crane and Olivia, alias Jane Allen, the cook, the play ends with the brightest prospects for these two young people.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

BURTON CRANE, from the North-William Hutchinson.

Solon Tucker, his attorney and guest-Eugene Moak.

PAUL DAINGERFIELD, alias Smithfield—John Howard.

CHARLES DAINGERFIELD, alias Brindlebury—Leonard Simms.

RANDOLPH WEEKS, agent of the Dangerfields--Malcolm Wright.

THOMAS LEFFERTS, Statistical Poet-Fletcher Meade.

OLIVIA DAINGERFIELD, alias Jane Allen—Frances Huntley.

ELIZABETH DAINGERFIELD, alias Arminta—Selina Harbaugh.

MRS. FALKNER, Tucker's Sister-Isabel Ballentine.

CORA FALKNER, her daughter—Elizabeth Thompson.

AMANDA, Olivia's Black Mammy—Gertrude Sinclair.

The Mosher Cups

THE two beautiful silver cups displayed in Mosher's window on Huron Avenue have been looked upon with many an envious eye. One cup will be given to the boy in the Senior Class, whose record for four years in athletics and scholarship excells all others. The other cup will be given to the girl who has the best record in scholarship and has given the most service to the school.

These cups, known as the "Mosher Cups," have been offered by Mr. Seeley Mosher, a former student in the High School, showing through his generosity a keen interest in the affairs of our school.

The cups will be awarded by the faculty and presented on Class Day.

TO THE CLASS OF '24:

We of the Junior Class are about to take up the duties entrusted to us by the Class of '23. We shall meet opportunities face to face, which will guide the way to "Happiness" and "Success." It is the ardent desire of those who have watched us start our scholastic journey that we make use of these present opportunities so that we may take advantage of those that are to come in later years. We must not disappoint them.

Therefore, let us resolve in the year that follows to conduct ourselves with such earnestness that we shall impress all those with whom we come in contact with our alertness and at the same time our sincerity.

JUNIOR PRESIDENT.

MISS WOODWARD

MISS STURMER

FORTUNATE, indeed, has been the Class of '24 in having for their advisors, Miss Woodward and Miss Sturmer. Always willing and faithful, they have assisted us to what has, undoubtedly, been our most successful and enjoyable year of High School. Great, in fact, very great is the debt of gratitude which we owe this couple, and though we may strive our best, it is doubtful whether or not they shall ever be fully repaid.

Bully Beef's Message

WHEN Jack came back from the front I thought at last I would get the war from one who knew, since he had been in several of the worst battles. But I received one of the greatest disappointments of my life, for when I said anything about the war he would shut up like a clam and pretty soon would change the subject. It was by an odd trick of fate that he told me the story of Bully Beef. We were sitting in the porch swing talking on the most common-place subjects when Jack happened to notice a Saturday Evening Post lying in a chair. He reached for it and turned it face upwards. The cover was a picture of a school boy with millions of freckles and very red hair. I was about to make some remark concerning the picture when I happened to glance at Jack. His face wore the queerest expression, a mixture of tenderness, amusement, and sadness.

He said slowly with a little crooked smile, "Gee, that kid looks just like Bully Beef used to." The minute Jack said that I scented a story but I was afraid to say anything for fear he would not tell it—but he continued. "Yes, Bully Beef had a face just like that lad's and even the horribleness of the war never completely changed it. I guess it was because he never let material things bother him. I remember distinctly once when conditions were at their worst in the trenches, a fellow came up to Bully, who was standing near me, and said, 'Lord, isn't this hell!' Bully looked up to him and replied fervently and with his blue eyes twinkling, 'Gosh no, its a trifle too cold for that.' And that was Bully Beef.

"It was funny how all the division got to calling him Bully Beef. When we arrived over there, we heard stories of how the Germans starved their prisoners, and a short, freckled-faced, red-haired man was heard to declare that he, for one, wasn't going to be caught without any grub! After that he was never seen without a can of bully beef (corn beef) swinging from his belt. Of course this amused the fellows tremendously and it followed that wherever he went he got the name of Bully Beef.

"In the trenches his dugout was next to mine and we became the best of pals. I found out what a prince among men he was, whole-heartedly generous, clever, daring, and with a flash of Irish temper that only made him more lovable. Sometimes when there was nothing doing the fellows used to gather 'round and Bully would entertain them. If he was in a merry mood he would draw out an old mouth-organ, and proceed to bring forth many unexpected tunes. Quite often it would be jazzy and he would tell us that he was back home dancing with his best girl. He would take mincing little steps, lifting his foot suddenly as though off from some dainty slipper, and then murmur 'pardon me' and all the while making such droll faces that the fellows would forget their misery and laugh till the tears ran down their faces. After these selections he was gretted with as much applause as the greatest actor in Europe would receive. But I think one thing that made the whole division love Bully was the way he could sing. He had a soft voice with the lilt that is peculiar to the Irish and the way he could sing love-songs—gee, if I'd been a girl I'd 'fallen' instantly. He was a wonderful mimic, too; he could be the fat man with the gruff voice or the flapper with her giggle, all in one minute. I believe, for a fact, that many of the fellows would have gone crazy from the awful conditions if Bully hadn't been there to cheer them up and to sometimes get their goats. Anyway he certainly had a talent for punching common sense into the fellows.

"Bully was giving one of his famous performances one night, when, in about the middle of it, we were summoned to the Captain's dugout. I don't mind admitting that my knees were talking very insistantly to each other, and when the captain told us that we were to be sent out near the German lines, I knew that the night's fun had just begun. And, Lord, what a night it was-black as ink without a star in the sky or a sign of a moon. It was so quiet that it was uncanny, and I don't know what it was but there was something about that night that made my flesh creep. I felt as though a danger terrible was impending. Ah, if I had but known what it was then. I shall never forget Bully Beef that night-he was wonderful; his nerves were like steel and he smiled his same old contagious smile as we started out. We traveled by way of our stomachs and made good time, about an inch an hour. We had gained the information we were after and were nearly within safety, when the thing happened which was almost inevitable. The Hun became suspicious and started firing. We immediately sought a shell hole for protection. After we had stayed there for a few minutes I had a hunch that it was time to move. But Bully said no. We couldn't agree so we gripped hands for a second and I started for another shell-hole, which if I gained would take me out of danger. I knew I was taking an awful chance but something told me to move. About two minutes after I had reached it, the hole Bully was in was blown to glory. I think I must have gone mad with grief and anger at myself for not begging Bully to move for I can't remember anything until I found myself in the American lines again.

"I can never forget the fellows' faces when I told them the story of Bully Beef's end—huge tombs and monuments are built for kings, there were neither of these in memory of Bully, but something infinitely greater, the sincere grief of every fellow in that division. Bully was only a sawed-off, red-topped, homely little Irishman but the bigness and beauty of his heart and soul got into your very marrow and stayed there.

"Days after that memorable night I was near the spot where Bully Beef gave his life for his country. I was again seeing Bully Beef in that shell-hole and rehearsing the parting that took place between us and naturally blaming myself for not urging him to move, when I came across something that turned my sadness to wonder. For lying there, partly covered by mud, was Bully Beef's old mouth organ, bent and battered, but all there. I picked it up and sat down on some rubbish to think. My mind could hardly grasp the fact that I was really holding Bully Beef's 'first aid to the grouch,' as he used to call it, in my hand. Finding the little instrument made me see again Bully with his eyes sparkling with fun, bringing a laugh to some fellow's lips where there might have been a curse. And suddenly I understood why I had been allowed to find the little old tin mouth organ. It was Bully Beef's message to me. As he had died, bringing joy and good-fellowship to the hearts of men, it was for me, the living, to 'carry on.' So, there, amid that desolation, I made a vow that I would keep faith with my pal—God knows, I pray that I may be true to my word," softly finished Jack.

And somehow I knew that Bully Beef would not be disappointed.

RAIN

A rainy day,
The world is gray,
The sun is hid from sight;
The wind is moaning,
People groaning
Wish for warmth and light.

The wind grows cold,
The day grows old,
The gale is at its height;
The sleet is flurrying,
The people hurrying,
On winters' rainy night.

A rainy day
In balmy May,
The world is turning green;
Flowers beguiling,
People smiling
Enjoy the warm sweet rain.

A darkening sky
In hot July,
A deafening crash of thunder;
Sharp white lightning
The sky is brightening,
The children watch in wonder.

The storm is o'er,
The sun once more
Sheds golden rays from high;
Birds in glee
Sing merrily,
A rainbow spans the sky.

ELSIE BURNS.

1973

In the last few years great changes have come about. The aspect of the entire world has changed. The living men who used to work so laboriously, the methods of travel, all the ways of the world, have been transformed immeasurably for the better. Now, wealth is produced almost automatically, and men no longer have to work hard and long for a little to eat. The means of travel, while they were known imperfectly fifty years ago, have improved so far that they would not be recognized as "improvements."

There are no gasoline engines now except in museums. They have long since been discarded. Everything nowadays is electric, and it is a vast improvement, for electricity produces no noise nor smoke, and gives greater speed. Aeroplanes, ships, submarines, automobiles, bicycles, unicycles, and baby carriages are propelled by electric motors. And with them go no heavy storage batteries or dirty generators for their source of current. But that is the secret of the Scientific Revolution.

A few years ago it was discovered that electric energy might be transmitted through the atmosphere, so directly upon the heels of this invention power companies all over the world filled the air with electricity. Only an aereal and a transformer are required to run the most powerful motors.

Automobiles travel 200 miles an hour if they so desire. Ships hum along at an average speed of 50 miles. Submarines can "bore a hole" in the water about 40 miles long in an hour and keep it up for months. Mono-rail trains whirl over rivers, mountains, and dizzy chasms on a single cable, held erect by gyroscopes, at nearly 200 miles for every sixty minutes travel. Aeroplanes of newest model may easily go a thousand miles an hour, and at the speed of 300 miles or more the wings are folded in to lessen air resistence because they are not needed.

And to think that fifty years ago, within the time of living men, people could have been so ignorant and uncivilized! In those days people thought they were speeding if they crept along at a mile a minute. In their antique gasoline buggies or their obsolete railroad trains they could not go much more than 100 miles an hour down hill if they wanted to!

But the greatest revolution has come in the way of aerial navigation. An helicoptic device enables planes to rise vertically or to remain suspended in the air. The removal of heavy engines enables them to carry tons of every kind of freight. Their construction has been simplified so that everybody has at least one of them. Home comforts and handy devices have been added so that many people live in the air most of the time. It is certainly wonderful!

They find it necessary to divide the levels of flight. Private aeroplanes, joy riders, picnicers, and "flivvers" dart about like a flock of sparrows below the five mile limit. Between the five and the ten mile limits freight of all kinds, heavy and light, hums its way. Above that to the fifteen mile height mail and passenger cars appear on the horizon, flash overhead, and melt into the opposite skyline. The rarified atmosphere above these is free to anyone with a good enough machine.

The other day I saw a race at the 20-mile limit. About fifteen different makes of planes were hovering over the starting line before a couple of hundred interested spectators. Suddenly the radio signal was given, and they were off. For fifty seconds or so they gathered speed, then having attained a velocity of 400 per, they drew in their wings to reduce the resistance of the air. Before the race ended the winning plane was going 1,224 miles an hour, or ticking off the mile posts at about twenty a minute. Some speed, but it is not the record.

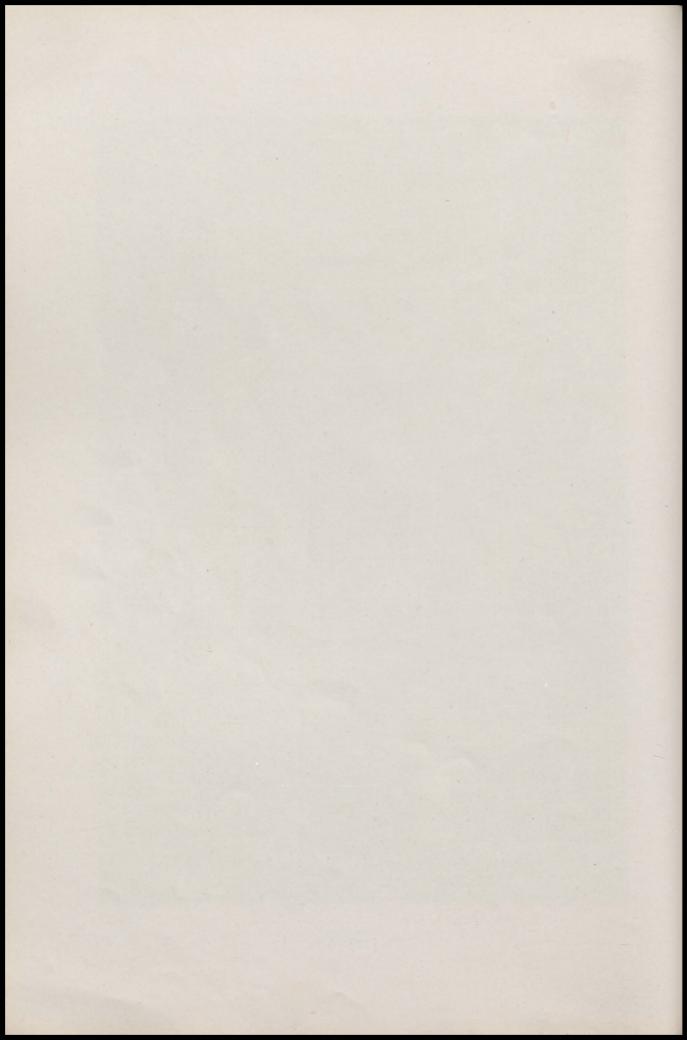

It is truly surprising how few accidents occur. Sometimes a weak propeller is torn off by the terrific centrifugal force; sometimes a pilot neglects to fold in his planes and they are ripped bodily off by the air resistance; sometimes, but very rarely, two machines crash and their pilots take to their automatic parachutes if they are not killed. But in spite of the great speeds and apparent dangers, life is considerably safer than it was fifty years ago.

And still I wonder how those people in 1923 could be satisfied with and enjoy their poor cramped lot in life!

An English Lesson

She sighed.
The task before her lay,
Her English for Another day.
All knowledge seemed
To fade away;
She sighed.

She groaned.
A vision of the Mark,
That on her card
Was sure to park,
Awoke her brain,
Dispelled the dark.
She groaned.

She grinned.
Her pencil flew apace,
Imagination
Lit her face.
The job was done
With joyful grace
She grinned.

LILLIAN RUSELL.

The Mystery of Mr. Rubel's Cane

MR. RUBEL, a wealthy American, was on a trip through the Orient. At present he was in Peking. Finding this city very disappointing, therefore he was preparing to get back to his old U. S. A. In his preparations he found it necessary to invest in a couple of antiques and it was in this way that Black Cane came into his possession. He afterward stated that he didn't know what prompted him to buy it but it seemed, he says, to have a pitiful look in that dark old corner of the shop from whence it came. Nevertheless he had his antique and so he boarded the Olympia for his homeward journey.

Now let us follow the Olympia in the form of a small ocean tug. It was puffing laboriously in the direction of the steamer but always keeping about two miles distant to the leeward. From all outward appearances the tug might pass for a fishing schooner but closer investigation would proclam it to be an Italian Pirate ship. The deck was covered with swarthy dark-faced Italians who looked as though they might break out in mutiny most any moment. One husky fellow was crouching with his ear to the key-hole of the captain's cabin. Within the captain was conversing with a slim young fellow who appeared to be of the Apache tribe of Italy.

"And so you saw him board the Olympia, eh?" the Apache was saying.

"Yes, and he had the cane you are looking for because I noticed the Royal Insignia when he set it on the counter while buying his ticket," replied the other.

"Well. I can't see how that cane ever got into China."

"Oh, I'll tell you. You see when the Prince left Italy it seems he went to China for he was not there three weeks before word was received that he had been killed by a mob of "chinks" led by an Italian. Evidently this Italian knew the value of this cane and got it in that way. The only way that I can account for its being in Rubel's hands now is that it was stolen from Tony. There's a chance that Tony didn't know the secret of the cane and so sold it to an antique shop. Anyway, Mr. Rubel now has it and it is up to us to get it."

"Well, I'll go around and spy a bit. So long."

Now let us return to Rubel. He was very uneasy the next day for he noticed that he was being followed. It seemed that every move he made was covered with this slim shadow. His cane seemed to melt under the gaze of his follower. But this only inspired in him a curiosity to find out why he was being followed. After forcing himself to eat a hearty supper he retired at about nine o'clock. He noticed that he seemed restless and could not sleep, but about midnight he was dozing off when he heard the click of a key in his door. His first impulse was to jump up and investigate but he finally decided to use strategy and appear asleep. Soon the door opened and a slim shadow slid across the room to his clothes-closet. Under the bright rays of his flashlight the midnight visitor soon found what he wanted: a black cane, then he tip-toed to the door and was about to go out when the ship suddenly shook violently from bow to stern. With this new confusion Rubel jumped out of bed and as he did so the visitor, instead of drawing a revolver and shooting, dropped the cane and bolted out the door. Then upon inspection Rubel found things untouched. Nevertheless he was thoroughly convinced that the cane was an unwelcome possession of his. But why should someone want to risk his life in order to obtain an old black cane for which he had paid one dollar? It was indeed puzzling. He then began to inspect the cane closely but could not notice anything out of the ordinary. Sleep finally conquering him he placed the cane under his pillow and dropped into a real sleep.

The following morning found the Olympia at New York harbor. Rubel immediately went to the Pennsylvania and secured a room.

After spending an enjoyable evening at the Lyric he was just congratulating himself for having eluded his shadower when a gruff voice behind him growled, "Up with de mitts, mister." Turning around he found himself face to face with a husky Italian of immense proportions. Rubel, who was not the least frightened, inquired, "Well, what can I do for you?"

"Turn over dat cane."

With a worried look of astonishment Rubel asked, "I will most willingly, but would you be so kind as to tell me whether you have anything to do with the fellow who visited me last evening on board the Olympia and so nearly got away with my cane?"

"No, I am an independent worker but I happen to know something about the gentleman."

"Now, for a little more strategy," thought Johnny, and then out loud, "Would it be asking too much of you to ask what there is so vitally important about this cane? I will tell you all I know about it. I got it from an antique shop in China for one dollar. Ever since, it seems that I have been shadowed."

"Well, that's asking quite a bit, but seeing the cane's mine I might as well be out with the sad news. You see this cane belongs to the royal family in Italy, and one time when the Prince, who always carried it with him, was in China he was murdered and the cane ended in the antique shop where you got it. This I learned from the man who visited you last nite."

"Well, now that's a lot to go from one country to another for, isn't it?"
"Bet it is, sonny."

While they were walking down the street it became very evident to Johnny that there was some secret about this cane and so he began to figure some way to get it back.

" * * Ah, wasn't that a bluecoat?" he exclaimed to himself. Sure enough it was. It was indeed with a clever movement that he tripped the "royal son of Italy" and whistled for the policeman. So suddenly did one appear that Tony did not have time to move before he was bound and marched to the headquarters.

After this experience Rubel nervously continued on his way home. It was then that for the second time he inspected his cane closely. "Ah! what's this," he muttered as his fingers ran across a slight raise on the side of the cane. "Some what of a button, I guess," he said. Upon pressing it he was not a little surprised to see the bottom of the cane spring open and three diamonds about the size of a small walnut roll out and lay sparkling on the floor. "Well, I do declare," he muttered to himself, "this surely was worth chasing around the continent for. And to think I have been leaning on a million dollars without the slightest knowledge of it."

After a good rest Johnny got up next morning and hurried to the best jewelry store in New York.

"And you think the three of them are worth a million, do you? I'll tell you what I'll do. You give me the money for two of them and I'll keep one for a souvenir."

About a week later it was announced in the papers that the construction of a school and hospital for the poor and destitute was begun. The construction work was financed by John Rubel.

Johnny was certainly a happy young man to think that he had made himself useful to others and that he had settled the cane mystery.

Success

Now there is the girl with the winsome face,
Delicate features and slender waist,
Whose attractive smile and charming way
Can win for her the fight of the day.
Then there is the fellow many people admire
Who draps himself in the latest attire.
Whose well-poised head and sprightly step
Give him any position he wishes to get.
But give us the boy or girl, homely or fair,
Who is willing to play the game fair and square,
And it matters not how the cold eyes of the world trend,
That boy or girl will succeed in the end.

Passing On

When thru' these portals we have passed On our road to higher tho'ts, We hope that we at last Would one good have wrought.

The days and months have gone Thru which we toiled and sweat, And we have gained the prize Which we set out to get.

Of Caesar's battles we have learned, Of how he crossed the Rubicon, you know, And said, "The die is cast, Now I shall have my own at last."

Soon that day in June shall come When our reward we shall receive, When far behind the name of Soph. we'll leave And travel till again the call shall come.

Fantastique

When I came
I knew Thy name;
Long. long years
I spent with Thee,
Anguished tears
Did visit me;
Yet now,
As long before,
I know no more
Of thee.

Many years I wandered,
A spirit in torment;
Oft' my mind has pondered
The cause of its ferment:
Consonance at best did seem
The rasp of dissonance;
Thru it all the moon's bright beam
Held a ghastly sickish gleam;
Song was cloven to the earth,
Dreams possessed a carnal girth;

I felt the depths of murky Nile, Caresses of a crocodile; Chains that Hercules might burst, Naught for me but pain and thirst; To starve and still be filled with food, Be holy, yet decry the good.

A priest, I grew, A missaped elf, A sacred, curved dagger grew To sacrifice myself: I saw an island in a sea,
Mighty throngs awaited me,
A droning hum, a vacant stare,
Naked thoughts, and shaggy hair,
Awful, longing, seeking eyes,
Forlorn hope that never dies.

From my roamings
I've returned,
Always known
A heart that's yearned;
I'm tired now,
I know no more
Than long before
Of Thee.

The Sallie A. Crane Scholarship Fund

THE Port Huron High School Alumni Association is raising $5,000 for the Sallie A. Crane Scholarship Fund.

In 1917 the Association had on hand $45.00 and this small amount was loaned to a young woman graduate to enable her to take a course at Ypsilanti. She later returned the loan in full with grateful appreciation for the assistance given at a critical time. The young woman now has a splendid position in one of the Detroit schools.

After the death of Mrs. Sallie A. Crane in December, 1919, the Alumni Association in conjunction with the Teachers' Club held a meeting and decided to perpetuate the memory of Mrs. Crane, a revered and beloved teacher in the High School for thirty years, by establishing a scholarship fund.

A constitution and by-laws were adopted. It is the duty of the Alumni Association to collect, conserve and administer the Sallie A. Crane Scholarship Fund, which is for the purpose of assisting some alumnus of the Port Huron High School to obtain a higher education at some other institution, or an upper classman to continue High School work.

The fund is administered by a Board of Directors composed of the President of the Board of Education, the Superintendent of Schools, two members of the Alumni Association, a representative of the Teachers' Club, the President of the Senior Class and a member at large. The personnel of the Board at present is John L. Fead, Harlan A. Davis, Louis A. Weil, Grace L. Meisel, Katherine Harris, Roy Briggs, and W. L. Jenks, a life long friend of Mrs. Crane. From this Board, Louis A. Weil was elected President and Katherine Harris, Secretary-Treasurer.

The officers of the Alumni Association are: President, Grace L. Meisel, 1896; First Fice-President, Russell Jackson, 1905; Second Vice-President, Rose Sturmer, 1915; Secretary, Bess Hyde, 1906; Treasurer, Earle MacKay, 1906; Directors, Louis A. Weil, 1896, and Wescott T. Smith, 1911.

There are three classes of membership:

- 1. Life Membership consisting of all Alumni of the Port Huron High School or members of the Senior Class, who may by the payment of $10.00 become a life member of the Sallie A. Crane Scholarship Fund Association.
- 2. Limited Membership—consisting of all persons or students of the High School who pay the sum of $1.00, which makes such person a member for one year.
- 3. Honorary Membership—consisting of all persons who may for the purpose of furthering the objects of said fund, pay not less than $10.00.

The first contribution to the new fund was given by Edith Probett Marcy, Class of 1892, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who pledged $5 annually and has given $20 to date.

The Alumni Association gave a $50 Liberty Bond which was given to it by the Class of 1917 at its graduation.

Other contributions came from the Teachers' Club, from whose members $148.00 was collected and many of the teachers took Life Memberships. The Woman's Club and the Shakespeare Class each gave $25 and the King's Daughters $100, in all of which clubs Mrs. Crane had been an active member. Many friends of Mrs. Crane contributed and the class of 1920 gave $50.

No general appeal to the Alumni for funds has been made. The writer has been working for six months in revising the Alumni directory and hereby expresses appreciation to all who have helped, especially Miss Harris of the Teachers' Club and Miss Ruth Norton, Alumni Editor for this issue of the "Student." With two thousand graduates scattered over the United States, the task is no easy one and this "Student" will carry to members of many classes the addresses of their classmates. In many cases it has been impossible to find present addresses.

The past winter Mr. L. A. Weil wrote one hundred personal letters to old graduates, asking them for memberships to the fund and a ready response was made to his appeal. A letter will soon be sent to every graduate asking for his co-operation in this work.

The Sallie A. Crane Fund is now assisting a young man at West Point Military Academy. It is also helping a young man and a young woman at the University of Michigan. The young man had two loans the first of which was paid in full with interest. Five hundred dollars is out on loans at present.

Many fine letters have been received from Massachusetts to California, commending this work on the part of the Alumni Association, especially must be mentioned those from Edith Probett Marcy, Bertha Joslyn Burroughs, John McNeil Burns, Christine Forks Smith, Sarah Noble Ives, Fred L. Leckie, Louise Karrer Sullivan, Leonard D. Haigh, Grace B. Wallace, Maude Long Abbott, Lydia Holder Akers and her daughters, Madelyn and Margaret, Bertha Goodier Weber, Thomas F. Zealand, Grace Moore Jenks, Edna Robinson Sperry and Kate Mulford Evans.

So the Alumni Association has an object for which to work, a purpose worthy of each one's best endeavor and co-operation, a means of service to the youth of the community. When each one of us responds to the final roll call, the great qualification for admission will not be what we get out of life but what did we contribute to it, and our passport will be vised on the quality of service rendered our fellowmen.

Every graduate of the Port Huron High School should deem it a privilege to participate in this splendid cause. A yearly membership costs but a dollar and the association feels that every graduate can share in this work. Many can send $5, and $10 will entitle one to Life Membership. These things are easily overlooked and forgotten in the stress and rush of every day.

Think it over and act now. Write a check today making it payable to the Sallie A. Crane Fund and mail it to Grace Loretta Meisel, 1317 Seventh Street, Port Huron, Michigan, for which a receipt will be sent you.

A hearty appreciation is herbey expressed to each contributor and greetings to the boys and girls of the Port Huron High School wherever they may be.

LORETTA GRAVES MEISEL, 1896,

President P. H. H. S. Alumni Association.

The St. Lawrence Water-way

THE most stupendous canalization project of all time is being proposed. The estimated cost of the Panama Canal was $140,000,000; the construction cost was $300,000,000. In the St. Lawrence section alone, this water-way will cost at least $1,450,000,000, to say nothing of the cost of continuing this water-way through Great Lakes and Rivers, rebuilding or deepening all our Great Lakes canals, rebuilding or deepening nearly all our Great Lakes harbors, the interest on these stupendous sums, the cost of high power lines to carry the proposed water power product to market, the cost of administration, operation and up-keep on all these things. All this expense and much more must be incurred if this project is to be available to Great Lakes communities, and this immense sum must come from the people, whether by way of taxes or by way of charges from water power companies, or otherwise. In the end, the public pays the price.

The proponents of any such measure should have the burden of proving beyond any doubt, the economic practicability of the project before plunging into an undertaking costing such an immense sum. Even if it would accomplish what its proponents claim, thoughtful and patriotic citizens might well hesitate to plunge into such expense at this time when the whole world is engaged in an almost hopeless struggle to recover its economic aplomb after the orgies of the late war. But the arguments why it will not accomplish what is claimed, are so legion, that asking one to set them forth in a 500 or 1,000 word article is like endeavoring to write the Bible in one chapter. About all that can be done is to call attention to two of the most important, namely, the stupendous cost, and lack of proof of use, of such water-way, if built. The cost of the water-way, as compared with its use after construction, should determine its economic necessity.

COST

In the propaganda that is being put out by the proponents of this project, an estimate of $252,000,000 for a 25-foot channel from Montreal to Lake Ontario is being used as the basis. Colonel Hugh L. Cooper, one of the foremost water power and canal engineering authorities of the world, familiar with dam and canal construction, who built the Keokuk dam across the Mississippi, and the power plant of the Toronto Power Company, who has spent $200,000 making surveys along the St. Lawrence for water power companies, makes the following estimate for this same work:

"We believe that a careful estimate of the project as set forth in the engineering section of this report will show that the amount of work herein outlined, is of greater magnitude with respect to cubiture, engineering difficulties and total costs, than has ever been proposed in the past. In the St. Lawrence section alone, the estimated final costs are $1,450,000,000 (for water power $1,300,000,000 and for navigation $150,000,000)."

This is for a 25-foot channel only, and one does not have to be an engineer or a sailor to realize that boats of 25-foot draft cannot be navigated in a 25-foot channel. They would continually be on the bottom. Even the proponents admit that ocean craft must be allowed to load to at least 25 feet so it would be necessary to dredge or blast to a few feet more of channel depth in order to allow for navigation at 25 feet. As an illustration, our present Great Lakes channels are dredged or blasted to approximately 23 feet, but the recommended draft last fall for the loading of our lake boats was only 18 feet, an allowance of about 5 feet. Our lake levels fluctuate not only over a period of years, gradually receding and gradually coming back with a difference of several feet, but also fluctaute sharply locally, due to wind and other causes. For instance, the draft of water in our river channels varies a foot or two according to the wind, and at the ends of the lakes, such as Buffalo and Toledo, the draft of water varies as much as 8 feet. It is frequently variable without any apparent cause and even directly against the wind. It is only fair, therefore, to start in with a 30-foot channel, to correspond with the channel below Montreal, and the deeper you go, the more the cost in proportion, the last five feet costing much more than any other five feet and in rocky formation, possibly as much as all the rest combined. This expense of going sufficiently below 25 feet to permit of navigation at all, whatever it may be, must, therefore, be added to the $1,450,000,000.

Then the recommendation is that the cost of the Welland Canal be added in and from present indications, that will be over $100,000,000.

It has also been seriously advanced by statesmen and competent lawyers that, as the new water-way will do away with the present Canadian canal system and will be practically a taking of the present system eminent domain, that Canada be reimbursed for such present canal system. This again would add millions.

The project necessitates the building of large dams, and this necessitates the flooding of large tracts of what is now up-land, indeed so much so that whole towns will be submerged together with present existing power houses, mills and factories, to say nothing of power sites. Also, railroad lines and bridges will be wiped out and will have to be rebuilt, over extended territory, undoubtedly with many additional bridges. Nothing was included in this estimate for these, and again, untold millions must be added.

Nothing was allowed in this estimate for administration during construction. Many experts, engineers and otherwise, and a large administrative clerical force will have to be employed for many years, to construct all this work.

Neither was the item of interest included. Money would have to be advanced from some source to finance this project, presumably by the Government by way of a bond issue, and it is doubtful if this money could be gotten even under a Government bond issue at less than 5%. Colonel Cooper's estimate alone is $1,450,000,000, and on this basis the interest would be $72,500,000 a year.

Then the electricity generated by the water power must be gotten to market and Mr. S. Ferguson, Vice-President of the Hartford Electric Light Company, says:

"Lines capable of bringing one-half million horse power into New England will cost $50,000,000."

The foregoing costs are all in direct connection with the proposed project, and while we cannot even estimate them, because some of them, such as the cost of flooding, are absolutely unknown and unknowable until determined by juries in particular cases, still it is easy to see we must contemplate billions instead of millions.

But the propagandists say this will be paid for by the generation of electricity by water power. Well, let us see. In the first place this declaration applies only as to the estimate of $252,000,000, which we now know must be billions. In the next place can any authority take this water power away from the riparian owners without compensation? The national Government has only such power as is ceded to it by the States, and that not ceded is retained in the States and the citizens thereof. Water power has been considered a property right since time immemorial and belongs to the riparian proprietor so far as he can utilize it without detriment to his neighbor. The State of New York has never ceded its control of, and its riparian rights in, the water power of the St. Lawrence or the lands under the water, to the National Government, and therefore must retain the same. The provinces of Ontario and Quebec have never ceded their rights in the waters of the St. Lawrence nor in the lands under such waters, to the Dominion Government, and they and the proprietors of riparian rights, as well as New York State and her riparian proprietors, will, in all human probability, assert their rights and claim that they cannot be taken away from them and sold by any Federal Government as water power rights, to subsidize a water power project of this kind. The only ground on which such action could even be argued, would be that it is in the interest of the public right of navigation, which is under the control of the Federal Government. But when we see that under Colonel Cooper's estimate, $150,000,000 only of this is for navigation and $1,300,000,000 for water power, or only about one-ninth for navigation, is it conceivable that the Federal Government can take eight-ninths, representing water power, away from the people of New York State, on the presumption that it will serve the one-ninth navigation? That this is in reality a water power project seems so apparent on its face that it is hardly conceivable that the Federal Government will allow itself to be thus used to put across a water power scheme under the guise of a help to navigation. It is more than doubtful if there is any legal right. But even if there is, what about the moral right to take the property of New York, Ontario and Quebec, and its riparian proprietors, without compensation, and devote it to the building of a water way which even its proponents say is for the benefit of Western communities? It is at least safe to say that this will never come to pass except at the end of costly litigation, through both the United States Supreme Court and the Privy Council of the House of Lords of England.

But suppose it is ultimately found that the Federal Government has the authority to take the riparian proprietors' water power and sell it for the benefit of some one else, where will it be sold? It is a well known geographical fact that both Canada and the United States in the vicinity of the St. Lawrence, and indeed pretty largely all over New England, is a hilly country, filled with numerous streams, capable of generating all the water power needed, and very little developed. Chief Engineer Wilson, of the Montreal Heat, Light & Power Company, says that the cost of development of water power on the St. Lawrence would be so great under the proposed plan, that power would have to be sold at from $60.00 to $75.00 in the nearest markets, and that would be more than coal made electrical power; that on the St. Maurice River alone, 700,000 H. P. is available at a cost of one-third that of the St. Lawrence, and this part of Canada is full of such streams. Super-Power Zone Engineer Murray, says that in the Boston, Lowell, Providence and Worcester districts, the electrical energy now available amounts to 972,000 H. P. Industry there demands only 743,000 H. P. In Western New England, embracing the manufacturing centers of Hartford, New Haven and Northampton, the present supply is 560,000 H. P. and the demand is only for 408,000 H. P. It would cost $50,000,000 to get St. Lawrence power to this market and there is no demand for it when it gets there.

But suppose this water power could be taken away from its owners and could be marketed, it is not claimed that it will pay more than this estimate of $252,000,000, which should rather be estimated in billions to build the St. Lawrence section alone. Also, suppose the marketing of power could be devoted to any cost that the water-way proper might run to, and it has never been claimed that it could be devoted to any other expense, who is to pay the balance of this expense? Who is to pay $100,000,000 for the Welland Canal? Who is to pay for dredging the Bar Point Channel from Lake Erie to the Detroit River to 30 feet? Who is to pay for blasting the Lime Kiln Crossing Channel to 30 feet? Who is to pay for blasting the Livingston Channel to 30 feet? Who is to pay for blasting the Ballard Reef Channel to 30 feet? Who is to pay for dredging Grosse Point Channel to 30 feet? Who is to pay for dredging a channel across Lake St. Clair to 30 feet? Who is to pay for dredging the St. Clair Flats Canal to 30 feet, and more than likely entirely rebuilding the canal? Who is to blast and dredge the Dark Hole Channel in the Soo River to 30 feet? Who is to blast and dredge the Middle Neebish Channel to 30 feet? Who is to blast and dredge the West Neebish Channel to 30 feet? Who is to dredge nearly all the way across Hay Lake and through the Island Cut to 30 feet? Who is to rebuild the locks at the Soo to 30 feet? Who is to re-dredge and rebuild all our harbors to 30 feet? These various known necessary improvements, and countless others which would develop when we attempt to get a channel of 25 or 30 feet, would again run into billions.

Take as an illustration, the harbor of Cleveland. There is only 25 feet at the outside waterworks crib, five miles out in the lake. A 30-foot channel would have to be started somewhere beyond that and carried to the entrance of the harbor and six or seven miles up the river, to say nothing of the various basins in the harbor which would have to be dredged all over. Many of the buildings adjacent to these waters were built for about 15 feet draft of water, and if the ground were dredged out to 30 feet anywhere near them, they would probably fall into the harbor. This is only typical of hundreds of harbors on the Great Lakes and this work would have to be done if the Great Lakes were to be available to ocean tonnage of a draft of 25 feet.

The water power would not pay for all this, we, the tax-payers, would pay these untold billions, and what for? So far as can be now known, for a pretty picture, a mirage, a pure chimera.

NO PROOF THAT WATER-WAY WOULD BE USED

It makes a pleasing mental photograph to conjure up a picture of the Leviathan discharging passengers at our very doors, or even a tramp steamer discharging myrrh and frankincense, in the nature of guano, not at our doors, but if we do not deceive ourselves, what have we, in reality, to base any such picture on?

Ocean craft cannot compete with lake craft in local lake trades. Such craft, built for weathering the storms of the North Atlantic, are much heavier, stronger, deeper and on finer lines, with a good deal more dead rise than are the lake ships. The machinery differs radically, owing to the salt water, and is more expensive and differently placed. On the ocean ships surface condensers are imperative and much brass or lead piping is required. The machinery, placed amidships, interferes with rapid loading and unloading. The hatches are too small and too few, and not properly spaced to suit the docks, elevators, loading and unloading facilities and the rapid handling of freight in lake ports. The coal bunkers are much larger for long ocean runs and occupy available space used for cargo on lake boats. All deck construction, the rudder, anchors, chains, etc., are heavier and more expensive than are required for the lakes. Decks add weight and interfere with loading, stowing and unloading of coarse freight. The cheap transportation of freight on the Great Lakes is made possible from the development of a special class of ship adapted for lake use only, which, when combined with the highly specialized loading and unloading apparatus which exists on the lakes, has produced the lowest transportation cost known the world over. A modern lake freighter is nothing more or less than an immense long, steel trough, or box, having its cabins and living quarters at one end and its machinery at the other, and fitted with from 30 to 38 hatches, pulled upon by machinery, practically removing the deck the whole length and leaving the trough clear, thereby readily adapting the box or trough to the quick loading and unloading of cargo. This construction enables us to carry the maximum of cargo on a minimum of draft and handle it in a minimum of time. It is for this reason that we can carry a ton of coal 1,000 miles and deliver it at Duluth for about 30c, which is cheaper than it can be taken from your curb into your cellar. Ocean going craft of an entirely different construction could not compete in such local trades; in fact, it would be almost impossible to load and unload them with our modern rapid acting machinery, as such machinery could not get into the small hatches on ocean craft.

On the other hand, our lake ships could not engage in the ocean traffic,, because of this special lake construction, which does not have to consider the winter storms of the North Atlantic. Our ships are really not fitted and not seaworthy for such ocean trade. They could not obtain ocean classification and they could not obtain insurance and, of course, if they could not obtain classification, they could not get cargoes, as the cargo owner could not get insurance.

We must consider, therefore, only the exports and imports of such a nature that ocean craft might carry to or from our Great Lakes ports, and so far as is now known, this is a very small proportion of our traffic. During the war, when our Great Lakes fleet was practically mobolized so as to carry and deliver the greatest quantities possible, we boasted of the fact that over 100,000,000 tons of freight was transported by us in one season. This was a tremendous amount of freight and taxed the lake fleet to its utmost. One compiler of figures shows that this volume of freight, if placed in gondola cars, would extend from pole to pole and 600 miles beyond, and it is quite natural for those uninitiated, to imagine that a large part of this freight might be interested in seeking an outlet to the sea. In fact, most of the proponents of the St. Lawrence water-way, have talked in production figures, or carrying figures, such as these set forth, rather than in figures of imports and exports from our Great Lakes, and in both instances when analyzed, it will be seen that very little of this is export or import trade. Of this 100,000,000 tons of freight, approximately 60,000,000 tons consisted of iron ore coming from upper to lower lake ports, and approximately 30,000,000 tons consisted of coal going from lower to upper lake ports. These two commodities, totalling 90,000,000 out of the 100,000,000, were neither export nor import and could affect the proposed St. Lawrence water-way in no way. We have left only one-tenth of this traffic, namely, 10,000,000 tons. This remainder consists of grain, flour, lumber, pig iron, stone, etc. The lumber, pig iron and stone, again are not for export, so that there is left only the grain and possibly some flour to be considered. This is about one-fifth of our total lake tonnage and most of this is not for export, but is used right here in the United States. A great deal of this grain and flour, delivered at our lower lake ports, is for home consumption in our large eastern territory, leaving a very small proportion of it that is destined for export trade. Nothing else is definitely known at the present time. We have practically no imports going up the Great Lakes and certainly nothing in the nature of coarse freight or bulk cargoes, such as is designed for cheap ship transportation. Further, no less an authority than Mr. Herbert Hoover says that in a very few years we will no longer be a grain exporting nation, but a grain importing nation. Long before this canal can be finished, the only commodity we now know of that might go out of it in ocean craft for export, will be coming into this country instead of going out, and not by canal, but undoubtedly from Canada, our immediate neighbor. Are we then to build this canal at this tremendous expense, purely on speculation as to what use might be made of it in the future?

The propagandists indulge in wild statements as to what use will be made of it, one senator from a grain state, declaring that the construction of this water-way would mean the movement of 200,000,000 tons from the Great Lakes for export. The total exports for the whole United States for 1920, were 54,000,000 tons, and practically none of it went down the St. Lawrence. There is now, and has been for many years, a complete water-way via the St. Lawrence to the sea-board in which cargoes of from 1,500 to 2,000 tons can be carried in present salt water ships, and its use is entirely free of cost, as Canada built it and stands all expense. What cargoes in greater than 1,500 or 2,000 ton lots will be assembled for either export or import? The successful operation of a merchant marine is dependent on coarse freight or bulk cargoes where a large amount can be carried and handled at a cheap freight. Package freight alone has never formed the back-bone of a merchant marine. On our Great Lakes the package freight boats, west bound, have found that the movement was usually light, and east bound boats, nearly always carry the hold full of grain. What cargoes of package freight of more than 1,500 or 2,000 tons are there? Where will they come from? Where will they be made up and where carried to, upon our Great Lakes? If there is any demand for any such thing, why aren't they assembled and carried now in 1,500 or 2,000 ton cargoes, as can be done? It has been tried numerous times and always found unprofitable and abandoned, not because the boats could not be operated, but because they could not get the cargoes and could not carry what they could get in competition with other means of transportation. Proponents are indulging in theory and speculation as to the trade that will grow up. It is not good speculation; it is not even good theory. Our only knowledge of the future must be based on our experience in the past. The experience of practical sailors and steamboat men has not been such as to make them sanguine as to export and import trade via the St. Lawrence.

This is not a new proposition. It has had Government and engineering consideration and study many times before. Colonel Thomas W. Symons, of the Corps of Engineers of the United States, and for many years familiar with the engineering problem of the Great Lakes, in 1897, submitted a report on a proposed ship canal from the Great Lakes to the seaboard, to the Chief Engineer of the United States, and by him, through Secretary of War, Alger, that report was submitted to Congress as House Document No. 86 of the first session of the 55th Congress. At page 46 it is said:

"The pleasing picture of great ships loading grain, flour and produce of all kinds at Chicago, Duluth, etc., and proceeding thence to trans-Atlantic ports, and arriving at these ports with foreign cargoes, I cannot believe will ever be realized to any great extent, even if a ship canal connecting the Great Lakes with tide water should be built."

The Roosevelt Commission in 1900, said, in speaking of the possibility of a canal connecting the ocean and the Great Lakes:

"There are insuperable difficulties in the way of such canal ever being a success, no matter by whom constructed. It is intended to be used by vessels which can navigate the ocean, the canal and the lakes. We do not believe such vessels can be constructed so as to be economically a commercial success."

In 1917, the River and Harbors Act, directed a preliminary examination of Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River, with a view to connecting with tide water. The examination was made in 1918 by Colonel J. B. Warren, of the Corps of Engineers, long in charge of the Great Lakes district, and the report was considered by the Board of Engineers, approved by them, and submitted by them to the Chief of Engineers of the United States, approved by him and submitted to the Secretary of War, who transmitted his report to the third session of the 65th Congress. The report declares that the improvement of the St. Lawrence, with a view to providing navigation facilities suitable for ocean going ships, is not deemed advisable at the present time. Colonel Warren, and the Board of Engineers, considered the various projects and gave cogent reasons for not recommending the improvement, and, among other things, state that even with a ship canal from the International boundary line in the St. Lawrence to the ocean via the Champlain-Hudson River route, or by the enlargement of the Soulanges and Lachine or other canals in the St. Lawrence route, the traffic would still be governed by the depth of the harbors and connecting waters of the Great Lakes, and the deepening of the harbors and connecting waters of the Great Lakes to even 25 feet, was reported upon unfavorably on the ground that existing traffic and prospective traffic would not warrant the expenditure.

The Shipping Federation of Canada, a Governmental body, reported to its Government on this very proposed project, as follows:

"If, is is strongly hoped for by some of the lake ports, vessels of 30 feet draft will navigate in the future from Montreal to the head of the Lakes, the cost of the Canals would be enormous; we are afraid to give an estimate, as in all works of this kind, the greater the depth, the greater the multiple of cost; for not only would the St. Lawrence canals have to be built, but the water-way or approaches to the canals would also have to be deepened, which, in all probability would mean a dredged channel from Montreal to Lake Ontario, and again up the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers, and the rebuilding of the Welland and Sault Ste. Marie canals to 30 feet."

"It is not an economical transportation question. Trade, like water, seeks its own level. The reason today why steamers make their terminus at the various Atlantic ports, including Montreal, is on account of the unobstructed navigation. As soon as you have obstructed navigation, such as with canal locks, you immediately increase the cost of transportation. From an economical point of view, it is improbable that ocean going vessels will ever make a practice of trading to ports on the Great Lakes, no matter to what extent the canal systems west of Montreal are enlarged and deepened, as the cost of up-keep of an ocean steamer, the delays of proceeding through the canals and the danger of damage, would be too great to make them a revenue paying proposition."

Colonel Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, says:

"I have not seen the report on this project, however, although I have written for one. In the first place, the Great Lakes Seaboard project is visionary, and I wonder if the power development project really is not behind it."

Here are reports from competent engineers, both governmental and civilian, and from various governmental boards charged with the duty of examining into and reporting back on the economic feasibility of this proposition. And invariably they report against it. Under such circumstances can it be said that the proponents have proved their case? Would it not be wise to go slow, or at most adopt the recommendation of the International Joint Commission on which all this propaganda is based, which is that a more thorough investigation be made by experts to determine the economic feasibility of the project, before plunging into this tremendous expense, a great deal of which, in any event, tax-payers will have to pay? In most communities the tax rate has increased 500% or more in the last few years and most thoughtful tax-payers are inclined to rest a while and catch up, rather than plunge further into untold expense on speculative ventures. Even if an assured success, is the time opportune?

From a Foreign Land

IT IS very difficult for me to know which of my many delightful and interesting experiences you would care to hear about, so I've decided to start at the beginning and tell you just a few of the things that have impressed me the most.

It seems a very long time ago since we steamed into the Bay of Naples where I had my first glimpse of Mt. Vesuvius, with her ever rising column of white smoke, and the city of Naples, spread before us in the early morning sunlight. It was all so new and strange to me and I shall never forget my thrill of being for the first time in a foreign land, where I couldn't understand their language, or worse still, make myself understood.

After a few interesting days in Naples, we went by boat to Capri, that lovely little island just outside the Bay and from there to Sonento, where we started on the Amalfi Drive. It is a wonderful drive along the rocky coast of Italy, where the road circles the edge of the cliffs, high above the ocean. We passed through small picturesque villages, so old, and so near the color of the rocks, it was often hard to distinguish the houses from the cliffs themselves. I only wish I could find words to tell you how beautiful it all was.

After a week of travel in Southern Italy, we arrived in Rome just at the time the Fascisti demonstration was taking place. It was immensely thrilling, and at first, before Mussolini came to Rome, the Fascisti headquarters were here in this hotel. When I went out and passed through the downstairs lobby, I found it jammed with men in black shirts. They were always courteous, and gave one the impression of standing for the best in the youth of this country. They were not bound together by any salary or inflicted order, but only by an oath and devotion to the salvation of their country. They had left their work in the fields or shops and marched from as far as Venice and Florence to be in Rome in case there was need of them.

After Mussolini was installed there was another demonstration and the parade of October thirty-first was simply splendid. By good fortune we obtained seats in an upstairs window and had an excellent view of the Great Monument, besides the road leading to, and away from it, where we watched a steady line of Fascisti march from two o'clock in the afternoon till seven. It was at this time I saw the King when he appeared on his balcony to satisfy the cries of the people. The people went wild with enthusiasm for the entire Royal Family are extremely popular, and since then we have often seen them at concerts, operas and riding on the street.

After all this excitement it seemed quiet when we settled down to our regular school work, with classes all morning each day except Saturday, when we usually take a picnic lunch and spend the day in the country. There are so many interesting and picturesque villages and villas in the Sabine and Alban Mountains, and it is lovely driving through the country with the snow-capped peaks always in the distance.

Our sight seeing here in Rome is done in the afternoon on certain days of the week, and I have enjoyed so much the galleries, in which are so many beautiful works of art.

We re-visit several times, ruins of historical interest, and I have found it most difficult to reconstruct in my mind, the Roman Forum, for it has been destroyed many times, by fire and invasion, yet it is wonderful the excavations that have been made. The Roman people are very proud of their ruins and our guide showed us with great ceremony the spot where Julius Caesar delivered his orations.

One of my first impressions of Rome was the large number of beautiful fountains scattered throughout the city, which are in constant play, fed by the natural water supply, which flows by gravity, from the mountains, using in some places the Ancient Roman acquaducts. From the Piazzas or open squares, where most of these fountains are, wind the quaint, narrow streets. The majority have no sidewalks, especially in the old parts of the city, but they seem unnecessary as most of the people prefer to "jay walk" in the street, and be yelled at by enraged cab-drivers.

I enjoyed St. Peter's immensely and the approach to it is most lovely with the open colonades and beautiful facade. The interior is sumptuous with decorations of gold, mosaics and marble, many dating from the period of Constantine. The Vatican in connection with St. Peter's contains the private apartments of the Pope and extensive galleries, all watched over by Swiss guards in their picturesque blue and yellow uniforms designed by Michael Angelo.

I feel I must take just a little time to tell about the Colosseum, which to me is the most interesting of all the ruins. It is such an imposing structure and almost wholly constructed of large blocks of travectine, and originally held together by iron clamps. The interior has tiers of seats and staircases and one can climb to the top and have a splendid view of not only the building as a whole, but of Rome.

I could ramble on for pages about Rome, but I must tell you a little about my Spanish trip! Instead of having a Christmas vacation, we sailed from Naples the first of February, landed at Gibraltar, and started from there on our six weeks travel through Spain. The country itself is very picturesque and the people fascinating. In most places they still cling to old costumes and their clothes are most interesting—mantillas, shawls, etc. We stopped at Granada for some time and it is extremely beautiful. The "Alhambra" is perfectly wonderful and I shall never forget my first impression of it. The architecture is superb, and to me the palace seemed more like an uninhabited house than the ruins of an ancient fortress.

From there we went to Seville where we visited the beautiful cathedral. We were fortunate in seeing a quite unusual religious ceremony consisting of a dance of thirty choir boys on the altar in costumes designed by Michael Angelo. It was also in Seville where we met, with the first days of the carnival which is highly celebrated in all catholic countries three days before lent. People dressed in Spanish costumes with gorgeous shawls and high combs, lacy mantillas, paraded around the streets and were masked and threw confetti.

I am sorry to have seen Southern Spain first as Northern Spain was a distinct drop. Of course, while in Madrid we went out to Toledo and the Escorial—tourists stops. The "Prado" in Madrid was the most beautiful gallery I have ever seen. Each picture in it is a gem. The rest of Spain was uneventful. In Southern France we stopped at Marseilles, Nice, and by rare good fortune got into Monte Carlo to watch the play.

Now we are back in Rome planning to leave for our Northern trip in a few weeks—Florence, Venice, a peep into Switzerland, then Paris and London. From Liverpool the "Port Huron Wanderer" starts for home.

A Football Player

"If I could paint you, friend, as you stand there, Guard of the goal, defensive, open-eyed, Watching the tortured bladder slide and glide—Under the twinkling feet; arms bare, head bare, The breeze a-tremble through crow-tufts of hair; Red-brown in face, and ruddier having spied A wily foeman breaking from the side, Aware of him,—of all else unaware:

If I could limb you, as you leap and fling Your weight against his passage, like a wall; Clutch him, and collar him, and rudely cling For one brief moment till he falls—you fall!

My sketch would have what Art can never give—Sinew and breath and body; it would live."

FOOTBALL

E.C.

THE 1923 foot-ball season was a success for P. H. H. S. mainly because it broke even with two of the best teams in the State, Detroit Eastern and Bay City. But it was a greater success when we take into consideration the size of the schools that we have been playing. They are, with the exception of two or three, from two to five times as large as our school. However, we have shown that we are in their class in quality if not in quantity. A real victory for us lies in the fact that in the 1923 season we held for the first time Eastern (score 0-0), it being the first time that we even held a Detroit High School in a great many years. P. H. H. S. has had a bad habit of getting beat in foot-ball by Detroit schools, with very lopsided scores, for the past five or six years. We hope, however, the 1923 foot-ball team broke that bad habit by the Eastern game.

During this last foot-ball season the Red and White had many stars who showed constantly through the whole season. There was not a game nor a part of a game in which the oustanding star, Clemo, did not shine. He was in the game heart and soul all the time, whether anyone else was or not. There were other stars who showed bright at times but their brilliance did not last. He played most consistently on both defense and offense.

Sickles and Hugh Ross ran Clemo a close second. Sickles, the mainstay of the team, was never over-powered, and often broke through and downed our opponents for big losses. He was talked of among local sporting circles as an all-state man.

Hugh Ross at quarter-back, through his head-work and punting gained much ground for Port Huron and a good name for himself as a punter.

Martin with his great weight and strength was a strong factor in making the line impassable. Lack of experience was his greatest drawback, but last year's experience will make him a star linesman for the team of '23.

"Pot" Ross also showed up very well on the line, and without a doubt will make an excellent captain for the next year's team. Gabler, our sturdy blond Swede, did some wonderful line plunging and, without the aid of the "everready" Clemo, on the occasion of the Bay City game saved us from defeat.

Among the "dark horses" were Wargowsky and Simms, who, like many others, did not know that they could play foot-ball until they had become Seniors, when it was almost too late. However, they did exceedingly well and the team would have been greatly handicapped without them.

As we said before, the season was a success, but not because of any one individual. Every man on the team had to hold up his part of it, and every man did. We are indebted to every one of the sixteen letter men for their able assistance in making the 1923 foot-ball season a success for old P.H. H. S.

September 23, 1922

MARINE CITY 0-PORT HURON 19

This was a football game on a baseball day, as the temperature was too high for the comfort of the audience and much too high for the players. Marine City gave us a surprise by holding us as well as they did. Two touch-downs were made by Clemo and one by Ross. In this game Duff St. Denis and Fred Wargowsky made their debute in High School football circles.

September 30, 1922

RICHMOND 6-PORT HURON 12

A greater surprise was handed Port Huron. All of Richmond broke lose with their horns and whistles and voices when they made their touch-down. It was quite an event. There was a good dance in Richmond that night.

October 7, 1922

BAD AXE 0-PORT HURON 7

Port Huron won in the last few minutes of play. Hughie Ross made the touch-down and Duff kicked goal. Bad Axe certainly put up a fight. Although it rained all during the game the spirit shown by both Port Huron and Bad Axe rooters was great. They declared a half holiday in Bad Axe for this event. Clemo, Gabler, and Wargowsky transferred automobiles five times and walked about five miles arriving at Bad Axe just as the rest of the team were leaving the dressing room to go to the field. However, they were dressed in time to start the game.

October 14, 1922

BAY CITY 6-PORT HURON 6

Luck was with Port Huron. This was the best team we played all the season, but because of Gabler's exceptional work both on line plunging and the defense and the regular defensive work of Clemo the game was saved from total disasater. A long run by Ross and a few line plunges by Gabler gave us our tieing score. This day Gabler made a name for himself.

October 21, 1922

MT. CLEMENS 35-PORT HURON 6

This was the blow that shattered our air castles. Though the team had most excellent support from the student body and other fans about town they did not show the brand of foot-ball which they were capable of putting out. There was, however, some excuse for their not playing their best. (The excuse has been forgotten). There were at least sixty rooters from here who traveled to the Bath City to see the ill-fated game.

DETROIT CENTRAL 13-PORT HURON 0

This game marks our second defeat. This probably would have been a tie game if it had not been for the fast little Central quarter-back, "Babcock." He made two touch-downs just by out-running our "backs." Of course, we shouldn't have let him get around end, but he was just too fast for us and that's all that can be said. The Detroit Central team, outside of Babcock, did not play Port Huron.

November 4, 1922

HAMTRAMCK 7-PORT HURON 0

Here we lost by a rusty "on side" kick. Port Huron out-played Hamtramck the whole game, but failed to notice in one play that a man had dropped back for an "on side" kick. So—the game was lost. This defeat did not have quite such an agonizing effect on the High School, as they had, by this time, become a little more accustomed to being beaten.

DETROIT EASTERN 0-PORT HURON 0

This is the game that made High School football fans sit up and take notice. The holding of Eastern, in the minds of Red and White "backers," made up for the three defeats directly preceding this game. The Eastern game was a great comeback. They were outplayed in every department of the game. Although we were out-weighed about 20 pounds to the man, they only made one first down to our fourteen first downs. This fact alone shows on which side the superior playing was done. This game was played on the home field before a large audience. The feeling of this large crowd of Port Huron fans, as the teams ran upon the field, was well expressed by the voice of one of the most enthusiastic roosters and admirers of our team in these words, "There's no chance with them now; too big for you." That was the way the spirit of the audience drooped, but the spirit of the team never drooped, and for that reason alone the score was 0-0 in favor of Port Huron.

U. of Detroit High 0-Port Huron 13

This game practically elected "Pot" Ross Captain of the 1923 football team. His excellent playing here showed his team mates that he was the man for the job. Besides picking "Pot" Ross for captain, the game added another victory to our list, which, however, was not easily won. As the U. of D. men said, their team was going the best it had been all season and it didn't take the Red and White griders long to find it out. This game was fought with grim determination in the minds of every player on both teams, although the teams were evenly matched both in spirit and weight. The victory was ours, because of the skill shown by our men. This can be accredited to our able coaches, Springer and Myers.

BASKET-BALL

A.C.A.

In looking over the results of the games played by the Red and White Five during this past basket-ball season, one would be lead to believe that a different team played the last part of the schedule from the St. Mary's game on. The scores became better as the games grew harder. During the last part of the season some of the best teams in the State Interscholastic League fell to the fierce, fighting machine coached by Springer. Though the team improved a hundred per cent. in spirit and skill after the St. Mary's game, the success they acquired was not all due to the team alone. From that time on the whole student body and many of the older citizens of our fair city were behind the team in spirit and body shouting at the tops of their voices. There were no longer any empty seats or standing room either. The Junior high Gymn was packed at every game from then on. That certainly was a wonderful illustration of what spirit and proper backing from the student body will do.

The Personnel

Hugh Ross, Guard, Forward, and Captain

"Hughie" was easily the best man of the local court. He is a senior and if anybody's loss will be felt it will be his. Always ready to fall fighting as was proven in the Lansing game, he likewise showed scrap, pep, and good shots.

MAURICE ROACH, Guard

As a standing guard "Roachie" was the best man at the sectional tournament, where he was the talk of the coaches. If he had played on a championship team, he would have made all state. He, too, is a senior and the team will feel his loss.

WARD Ross, Center and Captain-elect

"Pot" is believed by many to be the best player turned out this year. He practically always had the tip-off and was good at digging the ball out. Much is expected of the new captain next year.

CHARLES LANGFORD, Forward

"Chuck," only a Sophomore, won his second letter at basket-ball. He is the fastest man seen on the courts and his dribbling and his "eye" are perfect. With two more years to go "Chuck" is expected to make all-state.

RAYMOND HUPERT, Guard

"Dynamite" was ineligible the first of the season, but when his studies were taken care of, he easily made the team. He is fast, aggressive, and a splendid scrapper. He has two more years to play before he graduates.

HAROLD NEWMAN, Center, Forward

Harold was another "ineligible" but when his time was up, he came out and helped the "Beacons" win most of their games.

LEONARD SIMMS, Forward

The same as last year, "Simmsy" started to play his best late in the season. But when he played, he played. It will be tough to lose Leonard.

WILLARD BLACKNEY, Guard, Forward

Williard was a good man and, as guard, it was impossible to draw him out. As forward he has a good eye, and although it is not known where, Willard has a place assured him next year.

LAWRENCE ST. DENIS, Forward

"Duff" was a player all the way through. He had a perfect eye and was always counted on for six points. "Duff" left school before the end of the season, however, and so spoiled all possible chance of all-state.

The Games

PORT HURON 19-MARINE CITY 13

Port Huron successfully opened the season by easily defeating Marine City, 19 to 13. Ross, Langford and St. Denis were the scorers. Port Huron was never behind and just once did Marine City creep up until but two points separated them from the lead. Port Huron then spurted and easily won.

PORT HURON 16-SARNIA 13

On Friday, the 12th, Port Huron, accompanied by a band of enthusiastic rooters, boarded the ferry and pounced on Sarnia, coming off with the large end of a 16-13 score. The Port Huron crowd in the gallery was twice as large as the "Sarnians" and made fully five times as much noise.

PORT HURON 23-CROSWELL 21

The 13th of January, the night after the Sarnia game, something in the shape of a big surprise struck the Junior High. Port Huron, slightly tired from the night before and a little over-confident, almost fell before the vicious attack of Croswell. Croswell produced her strongest line-up and with 15 seconds to go was two points in the lead. On the tip-off Hughie grabbed the ball and scored, but not satisfied with this he immediately sunk two foul shots and won the game. It was a close squeeze and had it not been for Hughie, we certainly would have lost.

PORT HURON 9-M. A. C. FRESHMEN 27

On January 18th, the Red and White team made a two-day trip into foreign territory. As it was foreign is proved by the score. However, the team tried hard and should be given the credit as it was the only high school team to play the Farmer Freshmen this year.

PORT HURON 9-LANSING 31

The night after the loss to the M. A. C. Freshmen, Port Huron played Lansing, and fell 31-9. Although the team tried hard, they were tired from the night before, and were up against some splendid players. At one time in the last quarter Hughie fell exhausted to the floor and was forced to take time out.

PORT HURON 23—HAMTRAMCK 39

Port Huron continued her losing streak when Hamtramck accompanied by no uncertain amount of luck, "came, saw and conquered" by an overwhelming score of 39-23. Hamtramck players sunk baskets from all over the floor, while Port Huron missed dog after dog. Truly, "Old Man Jinx" was on their trail.

PORT HURON 15—BIRMINGHAM 30

Port Huron journeyed to Birmingham and thanks to Edwards, their star foul shot, came back losers, with but half of Birmingham's score. Things went against Port Huron right at the start and stayed that way all through the game. Edwards of Birmingham, shot 14 out of 15 free throws, in the meantime contributing 3 field baskets.

PORT HURON 21-St. MARY'S 16

Port Huron again took a trip, this time to St. Mary's where they met and threw "Old Man Jinx," taking the long end of the 21-16 score, although forced to go overtime. With the score standing 15—all at the end of the game. Port Huron rallied and made 6 points while St. Mary's chalked up but one. Hughie again distinguished himself, making 6 points in ten seconds.

PORT HURON 23-FLINT 20

Port Huron inspired by "Andy's" 500 rooters defeated Flint by a close score of 23-20. Coming back from a seven point handicap made by Flint in the first quarter, the "Beacons" tied and then drew ahead of Flint just before the close of the game. Langford, and H. Ross starred. The burial of Flint before the game increased the spirit ten-fold.

PORT HURON 20-HIGHLAND PARK 19

Highland Park came to Port Huron feeling confident of victory. But alas, for all feelings! Port Huron played the game of her life and when the final whistle blew was one point in the lead. Culverwell of the "Polar Bears" made eleven out of fourteen free throws and two field baskets for good luck. Though there was no star on the "Beacon" team, each man played for all he was worth, and the team worked together finely.

PORT HURON 18-PONTIAC 28

Port Huron journeyed to Pontiac and returned crestfallen, but nevertheless, heroes. They all played well and although lost by ten points it should be remembered they were playing on foreign grounds. In the last half, especially, the "Beacons" came back, but it was too late.

PORT HURON 31—DETROIT NORTHWESTERN 24

Northwestern, one of Detroit's best teams, was the victim of the Port Huronites' wrath. Molinda of Northwestern, was the best player on the floor, but one man cannot win a game, and this game followed the rule. The "Ross to Ross" combination of the "Beacons" proved the nemesis of the visitors. W. Ross, although removed by personals, made five field baskets. Roach's guarding was splendid.

PORT HURON 34-U. OF DETROIT H. S. 19

As a fitting climax for the season, Port Huron trounced U. of Detroit High School by an overwehlming score. From the start Port Huron proved the better team and almost scored at will. H. Ross made nine field baskets, Roach pulled the stunt of the day, when leaping up to catch the ball, it glanced off his hands and into Detroit's basket.

PORT HURON 18-ADRIAN 20

The "Beacons" accompanied by a crowd of rooters went to Ypsilanti to the sectional tournament. They picked an easy team, but over-confidence and a superior amount of luck trimmed them. In the last ten seconds a guard on the Adrian team shot the ball carelessly toward the basket; it went in and Port Huron again returned home, twice defeated by Adrian in the sectional tournament.

BASEBALL

ON April 4th, Baseball was under way. A meeting was held in the Junior High Gym. Forty-two candidates turned out, each with a place on the team in mind.

Because of the cold weather they could not work outside. The first week Coaches Meyers and Springer worked with the pitching candidates and the material they found made it look as though the baseball team would be a success as far as pitching went. With Briggs, Langford and Martin back and several promising rookies to pick from no coach would want more.

The following week Clemo led his team to Watkins Field and real practice began. Cold weather still held practice up some and with the opening game not far off real work began. The squad was cut and the battle for places started. The newcomers made the six old players keep their places. The material this year looks more promising than that of any previous year.

On April 21st Richmond traveled here to be the curtain raiser. The game turned out to be a comedy of errors. With the score at 11, Jupiter Pluvius stepped in to say the show must end just as things began to get exciting. Langford was assigned to do the hurling and showed rare form for so early in the season. Just two earned runs crossed the rubber. Loose fielding and errors were responsible for the rest. The team hit well and by their next game should overcome all other faults and be in tip-top form.

Our next victim was Marine City here and the team showed some real baseball, winning 11-4. Briggs went the whole nine innings and but for a bad start, never showed signs of weakening. The rest of the team played much better than the week before. Ross showed the fans he could still swat the pill. The fielders were in rare form. Blackney picked one off the fence in the seventh inning that looked impossible. Scheffler and Aldridge, the other two fielders, played airtight ball as did the infield. A few wild pegs caused by sore arms was the only fault of the game. Richards at second and Ruddock at short made a fine combination. Ross took care of first base in fine shape while Fenner made his presence known at third. Clemo performed behind the bat. Zemmer the star of the week previous, was out because of scholastic difficulties.

A little brushing up in the fine points and this year's team will be a winner.

May 1st the team played Marysville here. Croswell came here on Saturday, May 5th.

TENNIS

HURRAH for a new sport! Tennis, both girls' and boys', is coming to take its place on the athletic calendar of the school.

The school is to have two teams chosen after the interclass games are played. This will be worked out under the supervision of the Athletic Association. Committees have been chosen to direct the interclass games. They are: Boys' team: Roy Briggs, chairman; Miles Benedict, "Bud" McCormick. Girls' team: Doris DeGraw, chairman; Donna MacQueen, Elizabeth Coyle.

The first of the interclass games was played May 14, Seniors vs. Juniors, at Pine Grove Park.

GIRLS' BASKET BALL

FOR several years the girls of the High School have not been represented on the basket ball floor. This year a team was formed under the direction of Miss Manning, the physical training instructor of the city schools. For the first time in the history of the school the girls' team has had a regular schedule of games corresponding to the boys'. Among the schools played are: Marine City, Richmond, Brown City, Yale, and Harbor Beach.

Although the team was not a winning one, the girls put up a stiff fight. Next year we hope to have a championship team, for we have the material, which will show the people in Port Huron what the girls really can do.

The line-up:

R. F., ELIZABETH COYLE, Capt.

L. F., MARGUERITE ST. DENIS

C., SLYVIA BAIRD

R. C., MARY MORRISON

R. G., EDITH COOPER

L. G., MINNIE PRESSEL

Subs: Rose Sperry, Doris DeGraw

Music Appreciation Club

A MUSIC appreciation class was added to the music department of the High School this season.

The object of this class is to stimulate an interest in good music by a better understanding of such music and the composers who wrote it.

The interest shown was most encouraging, more than eighty members being enrolled.

The course of study was based upon the music memory contest numbers, and correlating with the symphonic selections was the study of the symphony orchestra instruments, their tone quality, groupings as chorus or sections, balance of instruments in ensemble and relative position of players in the orchestra.

In the Music Memory Contest, Fayette Major, Gladys Bastedo, and Harold Hazelton were awarded major prizes. We have all benefited by Miss Fraser's training and inspiration and we hope that the class will be continued another year.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

THE Boys' Glee Club was organized soon after school started and has had a successful year. The membership was increased to 40 and splendid progress made. Officers this year were—Hugh Ross, President; Fred Wargowsky, Vice-President; Clinton Clemo, Secretary; Jack Beamer, Treasurer. The club gave their services several times during the Music Memory Contest and at various entertainments. As The Student goes to press the boys are preparing for their final concert of the year, June 11.

THE GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

B. B. B.

SHORTLY after the school year began the musical season opened for the Glee Clubs. The Girls' Club surpassed all previous years with an enrollment of over one hundred members.

The club is making splendid progress under the able direction of Miss Fraser. Although the girls have not appeared before the public many times this year, they are working their hardest to make their annual concert, which will be given during the last of May, a huge success. The program to be given will consist of two parts as follows:

Part 1-Miscellaneous, including numbers by Glee Club, Girls' Double Quartette, vocal solos.

Part II, Cantata-"Pan on a Summer's Day," by Paul Bliss.

THE SENIOR GIRLS' QUARTETTE

AT the beginning of the second semester of school, a double quartette of Senior girls was formed under the direction of Miss Fraser. This group of girls is working hard and will present a series of numbers at the program given by the Girls' Glee Club. They will also sing at the Class Day Exercises.

The members are:

First Soprano - - MILDRED SMITH, LETTA PETERS
Second Soprano - - VIVIAN SCOTT, ROSE SPERRY
First Alto - - ELEANOR BEALE, RUTH STEELE
Second Alto - - DOROTHY MARTIN, DORIS DEGRAW

THE SENIOR BOYS' DOUBLE QUARTETTE

UNDER the supervision of Miss Fraser, the Senior Boys' Double Quartet has successfully started a new musical interest in our High School. They will appear in the Boys' Glee Club concert and in the Class Day program.

The members are Clinton Clemo, Malcolm Charlton, Horace Schnackenburg, George Sickles, Leonard Simms, Jack Beamer, Frederick Ballentine and Hazen Gravlin.

HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

B. B.

THE High School Orchestra gave but few exhibitions of its ability as a musical organization the past year, but much credit is to be given to those who worked so faithfully to make the organization worth while.

Under the able direction of Mr. Graziadei, the orchestra assisted the Boys' Glee Club in its spring program and also furnished a few numbers for the Class Day exercises.

Among those included in this organization are: Hendrika Immig, Vera Nelson, Lillian Russell, Gandace Lennox, Minnie Dreseher, Rera Smith, Marguerite Crawford, Selina Harbaugh, William Hutchinson, Fred Wargowsky, Harold Gokey, Clarke Dewey.

LIGHTHOUSE

ಹಿಡಿಡಿ

THE second year in our journalistic career has been highly successful. Though carried on in practically the same form as last year's newspaper.

Just before the Christmas holidays, by mutual consent of the staff and school, the name "Red and White" was changed for the name by which the paper is now known "The Lighthouse." This name was thought to be more symbolic of Port Huron than the former one. A beautiful cut and heading were donated by George Warwick, a commercial artist of Detroit, who appeared in Port Huron last fall.

Most of the veterans of the staff will graduate in June but there are enough left to assure success for the coming year. Many new recruits have shown marked ability this year and will undoubtedly contribute much to the success of the "Lighthouse" next year. The staff as it now stands is as follows:

Editor-in-Chief - - - - - Andrew Robertson Associate Editors - - - Phillip Browning, Clara Evans Literary Editors - - - Helen Brothwell, Dorothy Aikman Social Editors - - - Lillian Carlisle, Marguerite Rawlings Humorous Editor - - - - M. Benedict

Personal Editors-

THE success of the League this year is due greatly to the co-operation of its members and the unlimited help of its advisers and members of the board. Through this help each department has functioned well.

Among the many things that have been done is the Cafeteria functioned by the Social Service Department. This work was done by the different girls of this department and the unceasing help of Miss Kathleen Moore. Every day at noons the girls served some times "regular dinners" and at other times just a light lunch. The Cafeteria was discontinued after Spring Vavation because in warm weather this would not be necessary.

The Social Service Department also had a Girls' League Booth at the Carnival held in the new Sperry building before the time of opening. Many of the girls made handkerchiefs and other novelties. During the Christmas season the girls helped different unfortunate families of the city by giving them a Christmas dinner and presents.

The Personal Efficiency Department under the direction of Miss Scupholm has taken a great step towards the future pleasure of the girls in the coming years. A basketball team has been established as well as a track team. Gymnasium work was also enjoyed by a few of the girls as well as hiking. The basketball, hiking and tennis teams were under the direction of Miss Josephine Manning.

The Entertainment Department has also done well. Miss Sturmer and Miss Marsh have worked hard to make this department a success. Many parties for entertainment, dancing and refreshments were given by the Entertainment girls to the League as a whole. Assemblies were held at different times. A play entitled, "A Day and a Night," given under the direction of Miss Mayne and Miss Selina Harbaugh, was a great success. The girls were asked to repeat this play three times for different clubs in the city.

Rose Sperry.

GIRLS' DEBATING CLUB

ON January 31st a group of girls formed themselves into a representative association whose purpose is to debate and discuss current questions. Under the leadership of their officers and directed by their advisers, Miss Barrett and Miss Huff, the girls hold interesting and helpful meetings every Wednesday night in the Library Hall.

The members have been benefited by the various debates held throughout the year. It is probable that the girls have gained more true knowledge concerning such questions, as the "St. Lawrence Water-Way" and "The Allied Debt," through the open discussions held on club nights, than any other private study might bring them. Although this is one of the newest organizations in our High School, it is one of the most "wide-awake."

The girls gave a very entertaining dinner party at the High School April 6, 1923. The decorations of room and tables were carried out very well in the club colors, green and gold. Each girl brought as her guest a Junior or a Sophomore girl. The toasts and other forms of entertainment were thoroughly enjoyed by all. The club is looking forward to a very prosperous year in 1924.

BOYS' DEBATING CLUB

THE Boys' Debating and Oratorical Society, which is the full and legal name thereof, was organized last fall to fill the need of training in parliamentary law and debating for those students of the High School who desired such instruction. From the start it proved a success. A constitution was drawn up and officers for the first semester elected as follows: President, Leonard Simms; Vice-President, Omar Hill; Secretary and Treasurer, Francis St. Denis. The second semester it became necessary to elect new officers and Lyal Howison took the chair, with Philip Browning a substitute for Lyal and Jack Beamer, Secretary and Treasurer.

The debating club has put debating on its feet in High School. For some time past there has been no interscholastic debating but the club placed two teams in the field, winning three out of four debates, but losing in the semi-finals. This was done in spite of the fact that none of the six debaters had ever debated out of school classes. Next year it is hoped that the club will make even a better record.

MALCOLM CHARLTON.

THE SCIENCE CLUB

"TO know a truth in relation to other truths, is to know it scientifically."

The scientifically inclined students of the High School, in order to give vent to their knowledge and gain new, organized Monday evening, November 20, 1922, in the Physics room of the High School, the now thriving Science Club.

Due to the lack of supplies the club did not progress very rapidly, but in January, 1923, they began work in earnest, meeting every Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Physics room. A radio set was installed and every other meeting was given over to study of the radio. Despite the difference in the knowledge of the subject of boys and girls both, however, enjoyed the evenings spent learning the intricacies of wireless, as described by our able instructor, Mr. MacLaren, and listening to delightful concerts.

Under the able direction of Mr. Simpson, every other meeting was given over to the study of Photography. The Board of Education furnished the department with developing and printing apparatus, and enlarging camera. The club members progressed rapidly in the lines of Photography. Films were developed for High School students for a very small sum and printed at cost, so the students not only became acquainted with the principles of photography but saved money as well.

The club now has a membership of twenty-five but it hopes by next year to have increased to fifty.

The following officers were elected:

President - - - - EUGENE MOAK

Vice-President - - - - GEORGE SICKLES

Secretary-Treasurer - - MARION A. SMITH

Faculty Advisers - Profs. MacLaren and Simpson

THE ENGLISH LITERATURE CLUB

THE dawn of a new school year ushered in, among the many other various school organizations, a new club named "The English Literature Club." The club is composed of all people taking English Literature. Under the able guidance and advice of their teacher, Miss Northrup, the club has accomplished a great deal.

The purpose of this school unit is not only for fellowship with classmen but to promote, as far as possible, a movement for the cleaning and betterment of Port Huron High School as a whole.

Under the direction of this club in co-operation with the chorus an excellent Yuletide program was presented at Christmas time to the student body at an assembly. The program consisted of Christmas carols and readings by Selina Harbaugh, Mildred Smith, Charlene Shiland, Gertrude Sinclair, Ruth Steele and Roy Briggs. A pantomime illustrating the manger scene was also given. The characters were: Angel, Jean Laird; Mary, Isabelle McClellan; The Shepherds, Waldo Baer, Jack Beamer and Eldon Duncon. The closing number was a greeting to the school by the club.

The club may well congratulate itself upon its auspicious start, and next year the students of English Literature should make this organization one of the biggest and greatest boosters for Port Huron High School.

The club was ably led by the following officers:

President - - - - Waldo Baer

Vice-President - - - Dorothy Manuel

Secretary - - - Margaret Watson

Treasurer - - - Neil Boughner

THE LATIN CLUB

THE Latin Club of P. H. H. S. began work this year from the very start. The officers elected for the year were Phyllis Eichhorn, President; Miles Benedict, Vice-President; Arthur Maxon, Secretary and Treasurer; and Frank Fitzgerald, Publicity Agent.

The club has had more pep and has been doing a great deal more than was done last year. There were a number of interesting as well as instructive meetings held. The one big event of the year was the production of the movie, "Julius Caesar." The chairman of the committee in charge was Miles Benedict. With a great deal of trouble and care the committee was able to secure a number of people to give musical selections in connection with the picture, after which dancing was enjoyed by the many who attended.

Due to the long illness of Miss Kellogg the club was greatly handicapped by not being able to carry out many of the plans which they had hoped to foster.

In all probability the Latin Club will be even more active next year because of the large number of Sophomores and Juniors who are now taking a great deal of interest in its welfare.

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

THIS year the Athletic Association has been very successful financially. This is perhaps due to the new method of obtaining memberships.

This year the Athletic Board of Control, with the officers of the association, worked out a plan whereby each student of the school was to have the opportunty of buying a coupon book for four dollars. This would give him all the following advantages at a reduced rate: Membership in the association; tickets admitting him to every athletic event of the school year; a subscription for the year's "Lighthouse," and for the senior "Student." The result was that nearly every one of the High School students bought and used his coupon book and thereby increased the numbers present at games, and stimulated the "pep" at all athletic events of the year.

The football team, in recognition of their splendid efforts, was tendered a banquet on Monday evening, December 18th, at the Chamber of Commerce Grill. Mr. Meade presided as toastmaster in his usual bantering manner, calling upon: Mr. Davis, Mr. Springer, Mr. Myers, Andrew Robertson and Malcolm Wright, who responded splendidly to toasts pertaining to different phases of the football season. Speeches were called for by the students from Miss Sturmer, Miss Miller and Mr. Miles. Marvel Mann, Carmelia Graziadei and Selina Harbaugh entertained delightfully with their music and readings.

At a Friday morning assembly in late December the following boys received their football monograms: Captain Malcolm Wright, Hugh Ross, Cornelius Gabler, Ward Ross, Frank Schell, Horace Schnackenburg, Lloyd Martin, Harold Boadway, George Sickles, John Howard, Clinton Clemo, Fred Wargowsky, Lawrence St. Denis, Leonard Simms, Eugene Moak, Russell Tudhope.

The officers and faculty members of the Athletic Association are: President, Omar Hill; Vice-President, John Howard; Secretary, Willard Blackney; Student Manager, Andrew Robertson; Treasurer, Mr. L. F. Meade; Coaches, Mr. Springer, Mr. Myers; Faculty representative, Miss Miller; Class representatives, George Sickles, Frank Schell, Robert Orr, Charles Langford.

THE SENIOR CLUB

FOR the promotion of inter-class spirit regarding school activities and to band the class members together the Senior Club was organized as a continuation of the Junior Club of 1923. The officers elected: Roy Briggs, President; John Howard, Vice-President; Hazen Gravlin, Secretary; and Harold Cochrane, Treasurer; have piloted the club through numerous storms of trial and days of stress as well as to enjoy with the others the numerous social functions. Several banquets and luncheons made the year a successful one socially, while the assistance given to the Athletic Association and other departments of the school gave competition to the growing Juniors that made them realize the comparative good of their organization. At the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Class of '23 junctions were all discussed and resolutions made to adopt and carry out many policies of constructive nature. The club also considered the interests of the school as a whole and all was for the best. The only hope of the coming grades is that the next Senior Club will be as successful.

JUNIOR CLUB

LOYALTY first to the school and then to the class has been the keynote of the Junior Club. While it has made no special show of its activities it has been behind and pushing in every phase of school life. Next year it will be the Senior Club, and then they expect to accomplish great things if the present plans are carried out. The roll call which sounds like a Chinese menu is quoted below:

Pot, Stew, Duff, Schelly, Minnie, Cabbie, Doc., Mike, Peewee, Vogelei, Mick, Kenny, Zemmie, Arch, Donaldson, Hilt, Dick.

DURING the school year the Hi-Y Club meets every Wednesday noon. The place is the Y. M. C. A. and the program consists of dinner, business, and usually a speaker. Several men of wide repute have been present at the club meetings and always a visitor leaves with a light heart for the spirit and enthusiasm shown at every meeting is enough to make any grouch ashamed.

The good-fellowship created by co-operation promotes a feeling of the lack of service and according to this lack the Hi-Y Club has attempted and succeeded in several things that make their yearly platform of no mean size. By giving parties and a Minstrel show the club has adopted and paid for an Armenian orphan; a campaign for clean speech, sports, habits, etc., which was staged in the city schools was highly successful; and work on membership committees for the Y. M. C. A. in the interest of service, as well as several other things has made the year a satisfactory one.

Recently the boys entertained their parents at a dinner at the Y. M. C. A. and Louis Weil, Jr., gave an impressive talk of direct bearing. This opportunity afforded the parents a chance to meet the mothers and fathers of the other boys and by so doing realize the atmosphere in which their sons were placed.

Mass Meetings

September 29th. A History of Names, by Mr. Jenks

Mr. Jenks' address upon the origin of names in Michigan, especially those of St. Clair County and of Port Huron, furnished us with some interesting facts. Many of us did not know the name Michigan is the equivalent of two Indian words meaning "great-water." Port Huron itself was the result of combining the four villages of Huron, Peru, Desmond and Gratiot. Algonac, a contraction of "Algo" and "ai," means "Algonquin-place"; St. Clair was named for Patrick Sin Clair, who originally built Sin Clair fort, afterwards changed to St. Clair; Memphis is an Egyptian name; Jeddo, from Japanese town of Yeddo; while Grant township was named for General Grant. The students all wish you to come again soon, Mr. Jenks, as we enjoyed our first history lesson.

October 5-Educational Mass Meeting

Mr. Muir of the Federal Commercial Bank, gave a short talk on thrift. "Learn the value of a penny, and the dollars will take care of themselves," said Mr. Muir. By putting your spending and saving on a fifty-fifty basis, Mr. Muir claimed that a firm foundation might be established for our air-castles, airy and remote as they might seem. The password "Thrift" was impressed upon our minds that morning and we hope that each one has profited by this splendid talk.

November 3-Dr. Elliott

We were very fortunate in having Dr. Elliott of New York, editor of the Methodist Review, speak to us at this mass meeting upon the correct measurement of manhood and womanhood. The tape-measure method of measurement is the most commonly used, ran Dr. Elliot's message, that is, many people think the fellow who wins in football is more popular than he who heads his Algebra class. Quoting from Dr. Elliot, "I must be measured by my soul, the mind is the master of the man. What's the good of a pedigree if the colt can't run, points out that ancestry cannot measure manhood. Neither do money and fashion count as standards, but knowledge, knowledge is the true standard."

The two definitions of knowledge which Dr. Elliot gave are: 1st, knowledge is pleasure; and, 2nd, knowledge is service.

In closing Dr. Elliot challenged the students of P. H. H. S., "Are you going to be real men and women or merely ornaments?"

November 10-Patriotic, with Mr. Moody as speaker

Mr. Moody, who had recently returned from the convention of the American Legion, spoke to us at length concerning its work. He stated that the American Legion organized for God and Country. Their program was four-fold: 1, Hospitalization; 2, Americanization; 3, Compensation, and 4, Rehabilitation. Mr. Moody said of Americanization: "We believe thoroughly in America and that everyone coming to America should be taught to know her.

Know America and understand what she means. Citizenship is not a free gift, it has its responsibilities. In order to be a true American we must know, understand and love America."

The last very good point Mr. Moody brought out was that America ought to take place in defending the weak nations of the world.

January 5-Awards and Rewards

On January fifth we were called together to witness the awarding of letters to the football squad and yell-leaders of P. H. H. S. The letters which were given were white P. and H. Those to receive them were: Dutch Wright, Hugh Ross, Clinton Clemo, Pot Ross, Lloyd Martin, George Sickles, Hermie Schnackenburg, Leonard Simms, Lawrence St. Denis, Frank Schell, John Howard, Cornelius Gabler, Russell Tudhope, Harold Boadway, Fred Wargowsky and Eugene Moak.

The yell leaders, Mike Benedict, Kennie Carlisle, Fred MacElroy and Frank Fitzgerald, received a small red P. and H.

Brownie Springer gave a short talk saying that if you offered a football fellow a certain amount of money or anything more valuable than the letter, he would undoubtedly refuse the money and take the letter. An emblem which is worked for is more desirable than riches.

Tubby Meyers told us we should have a reserve team. He also gave us the basketball schedule for the coming season.

A few yells completed our mass meeting.

April 28-Rev. Burkholder, of St. Clair

The speaker of the day, Rev. Burkholder, pastor of the Congregational Church of St. Clair, delivered a helpful address on "Americanization or Playing the Game." The quotation which he enlarged and developed to quite an extent was: "For when the One Great Savior comes to write against your name, He writes not what you won or lost, but how you played the game." Mr. Burkholder's message was especially fitting because the basketball team received their letters at these exercises.

Senior-Sophomore Party

OCTOBER 27th was a red letter day in Port Huron High School for the Sophomores. The great event of the year was to take place in the Senior-Sophomore party that night. With wondering eyes the Sophomores watched the busy Seniors hurrying to and fro, carrying pumpkins and stick candy with the latter claiming most of the attention.

The party began its successful career at 7:30 o'clock with a popular comedy. This picture lasted for about a half an hour, after which dancing, to the strains of Keoppe's orchestra, followed until ten o'clock. The Senior girls accompanied the Sophomore boys while the Senior boys had for their guest the Sophomore girls, with some of the boys claiming as many as four girls.

For this occasion, the Auditorium was attractively decorated in keeping with the Hallowe'en season, having cornstalks and pumpkins scattered about the room. Stick candy was also used in decoration, it being suspended on strings from the window sashes.

Doughnuts and cider were served in the basement to the hungry and thirsty dancers.

Much of the success of this party is attributed to Russell Wonderlie, chairman of the affair.

MILDRED SMITH.

The Junior-Senior Party

THE annual party given by the Juniors in honor of the Seniors took place on the evening of April twentieth at the High School Auditorium. Music for the dancing was provided by Harry Baker's Wolverine Orchestra. The rooms were decorated in a pleasing manner. The main corridor was festooned with flowers to represent an arbor, and the auditorium was draped in a canopy of the colors of the Senior Class, blue and gold.

The grand march, one of the features of the evening, was led by Ward Ross, Junior Class President, and Doris DeGraw, Secretary of the Senior Class; while Roy Briggs, Senior President, and his partner, made up the second couple. There were several favor dances, among which was a Riss dance, one during which candy corsages were distributed, and a very novel one at which Mr. Meade presented each Senior with a miniature diploma. Punch was served at the end of the corridor during the evening.

Chaperones for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Meade, Miss Northrup, Miss Woodward, and Miss Sturmer. It proved to be one of the most attractive parties of its kind that has ever been given, and the credit for its success is due to the committees in charge, the general chairman of which was Calvin Matthews. Francis St. Denis acted as chairman of the decorating committee, Miles Benedict as chairman of the entertainment committee and Hilton Moran as chairman of the refreshment committee.

Sophomore Party

O N March second, the Sophomores met in the Auditorium which was prettily decorated in the class colors, blue and gold. At the front of the stage a '25 was posted in blue and gold paper. All about the room were cozy corners which added greatly to the decorations. This was the first class party the Sophomores had had which was given in honor of the new classmates from Junior High. After an hour of dancing they were entertained by dances given by Miss Sylphia McClemmons and Miss Virginia Belyea.

In order to avoid congestion in the cafeteria, fifty tickets were distributed among the crowd and when refreshments were announced this number fairly flew to the first floor and when they had returned to the auditorium, the others were served. All the Sophomores said they never were so hungry or tasted anything quite as good as the ice cream and cake that was served to them.

For those who did not wish to dance, games were played in the hall. Miss McCollom's room was transformed into a fortune teller's booth. A number said their fortunes had already, half come true. Serpentine added greatly to the evening's entertainment, and all Sophomores went home feeling they had never been to a more lively party, with so much amusement for every one.

MARGARET ORR.

The Junior Frolic

O H! What a party!!!! The majority of the credit, however, was due to "Fritz" St. Denis' talented eye for decorations. The preparation for the event was willingly taken hold of by the faithful committeemen under the able direction of Milton Wagner. The party took place in the Auditorium of Senior High, December —, from 8 until 11:15 o'clock.

The room was most attractive in its Christmas colors. In one corner stood the huge Christmas tree, most effective in its lighting scheme. Under its spreading branches lay numerous gifts which Santa Clause distributed at 10 o'clock.

In front of the stage stood a cozy little fireplace in which large logs burned brightly throughout the evening. Just above the fireplace, with the stage curtains as background, was the Junior graduation symbol, 1924, in the class colors.

Refreshments, consisting of ice cream and fancy cakes, were served at ten-thirty on the first floor.

Special thanks are extended to "Kenny" Carlisle's orchestra which, with their splendid music, helped to make our party a success.

The chaperones for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Meade, and the Misses Woodward and Sturmer.

Faculty Banquet For Honor Students

IN accordance with the custom established by the Faculty last year, the Honor students of the Class of 1923 were given a banquet Thursday evening, May 24, at the Business Women's Club.

Spring-like decorations were used with a May-pole of pink and white as the centerpiece. Streamers of blue, rose, green and white cascaded from the pole to eight tiny dolls in varied colored crepe paper dresses with bouffant skirts. Individual candy favors in pink graced each plate while silver baskets filled with wild cherry blossoms interspersed with silver candle holders and green candles, completed the table decorations.

An excellent program was arranged by Mrs. Naumann while several gave their time and attentions to the desired success of this year's entertainment.

The following program was given:

Piano solo, "Norma," Leybach Our Guests MR. DAVIS - - Miss Huff A Deal in Futures - - -Violin Solo, "Souvenir," Drdle - - Miss Marguerite Crawford Accompanied by Miss Charlene Shiland - MR. MEADE Rewards Education for Citizenship MR. MCKENZIE Piano Solo, "Rigoletto," Verdi MISS RUTH STEELE Class Response MR. LYAL HOWISON Song, "America the Beautiful," Ward Accompanied by MISS CHARLENE SHILAND

Girls' League Party

O NE of the best things the Entertainment Department of the Girls' League did this year was to sponsor three afternoon parties, for girls only.

These parties were given in the Auditorium of our school, where dancing and games always followed a short vaudeville act by some of our talented young stage aspirants.

At the first entertainment a group of Senior girls gave an impersonation of "The Sneak," but they nearly frightened some of the younger members of the League by their weird music and unaccountable actions. Another one of these acts was "A Meeting of the Board of Education," when Miss Marsh complained to Mr. Campbell of that continual bother, Fred Cowan. We never knew before that Margaret Streeter's greatest ambition was to flatter "Gabby" by imitation.

Punch and wafers were served and the girls agred after each party that the girls can have a wonderful time without the boys.

Girls' Debating Club Banquet

THE banquet was one of the most successful school entertainments given this year. The table was decorated in green and yellow, the club's colors, with green candlesticks and yellow candles. At the head of the table stood a "cupie" signifying, as Dorothy Martin expressed in her speech of the evening, that the club was still in its infancy. After an excellent dinner was served some of the club members, Helen Barrett, Marie Tuff, Phyllis Eichhorn, Margaret Streeter and Selina Harbaugh gave charming toasts while the after-dinner stories told by Madeline Marengo and Ruth Scully were enjoyed. Dancing was permitted from eight to nine. Much of the success of the party was due to the untiring devotion of Dorothy Martin and the co-operation of her two assistants, Ruth Scully and Charlotte Bergsman, while a great deal of credit is due to the decoration committee, Isabel Cowan, Marion Smith, and Alice Louise Buckeridge.

Girls' Basket-ball Banquet

THE first annual basketball banquet for the girls' basketball team was given Monday evening, May 21, at 6:00, in the First Congregational Church.

The long table around which sat nearly seventy-five or eighty girls was prettily decorated with red and white candles. In the center of this long table was a miniature basketball court containing small celliloid dolls dressed in "gym" suits. Around the edge of this court were the "bleachers."

A fine program was given, Selina Harbaugh acting as toastmistress. Those who took active part in this program were Bess Coyle, Captain of the team, who spoke on "Our Team"; "Our Captain," by M. St. Denis; and a piano selection by Marvel Mann. Miss Scupholm and Mr. Meade gave fine talks on girl athletics in high school. The program concluded with a vocal selection by Mildred Smith, a reading by Velma Keener and an address by Rose Sperry, president of the Girls' League that sponsored the banquet.

Reception by A. A. U. W.

THIS year, the informal reception given by the local branch of the American Association of University Women with the High School Senior girls and their mothers as the guests of honor, was a most pleasant social affair.

The Association was fortunate in having Miss Blanche Howell, Social Director of the Adelia Cheever dormitory for girls at the University, to talk to us. Miss Howell told us about college life conditions, expenses, etc. After she had completed her speech, she answered questions regarding college that either a girl or mother asked.

When Miss Howell had finished talking to us, the Association entertained its guests with a stunt, a "take-off" on freshman life in college. This was given just to let the present Seniors, who soon will be lowly "freshmen" know what is expected of them in their first year at college.

After the "stunt" a most informal reception was held.

THE 1923 STUDENT

In publishing the "Student" of 1923, we sincerely hope that it may be judged and read in the spirit in which it was prepared—the best that a hard-working staff could do. But our efforts would have accomplished little had it not been for the friends and supporters of Port Huron High.

We wish to especially thank Miss Noble Ives for her art work and Mrs. Bert Meisel for aid in compiling our Alumni Section. Mr. Lackey, Miss Katherine Philbrick, and Mr. John Cady have contributed invaluable assistance.

Perhaps the most vital need of a publication of this sort is that of a financial nature. We owe the advertisers in this "Student" our patronage and acknowledgment for their hearty support. To the students themselves we extend our appreciation for their interest and consistent help throughout the year.

Let us not forget Mr. Davis, Mr. Meade, and the Faculty who have so generously given their time and co-operated with the staff upon so many occasions, as we send forth this annual, which we hope may be better and greater than any preceding, and which the Class of 1924 may appreciate when they surpass us, as we hope they may.

Why We Need a New High School

In view of the fact that some propaganda has been lately started for the building of a new Senior High School, we, who are vitally interested, wish to state some of the conditions existing at present in the Port Huron High School.

The shortage of rooms is critical. It is an undeniable fact that good work is impossible under such crowded conditions.

Worse than the lack of necessary space, is the absence of proper equipment for a twentieth century high school. Seats and desks are of poor quality and in bad condition. The session room teachers, as well as the other instructors lack proper cabinet and filing room and they needs must find a crook here and a cranny there for the necessary paraphernalia. Some rooms, which have been partitioned off from the halls, lack proper blackboard space and the majority of class rooms are not correctly outfitted for the subjects taught therein.

The auditorium is shameful in its lack of up-to-date features. In the first place, it is on the third floor, making it a dangerous trap in case of fire, there being only two staircases from the third floor. Both might easily be filled with smoke. The acoustic qualities make this assembly hall unfit for its purpose, that of giving entertainments, recitals, lectures, etc. The squeaking and shuffling of the inadequate seating capacity adds a pleasant (?) accompaniment to the speaker's vain effort to be heard. The chairs, by the way, are all on a level, making it difficult to see the stage properly.

We have no gymnasium. Gym classes cannot be held regularly because no training facilities are available. The High School must depend upon the gymnasiums of the Y. M. C. A. or the Junior High for all its physical training. Is this as it should be?

No cafeteria or domestic science rooms are provided. If some of the citizens of Port Huron could realize how necessary a well-conducted cafeteria is, they could hardly hesitate for so long. At present, the Social Service Department of the Girls' League is struggling to accommodate a crowd of hungry youths in a room scarcely large enough to be called a closet. The pupils are compelled to eat their lunches in a drafty basement, finding a seat if there happens to be a vacant one in some dark corner.

We have written this article in the hope that the forward minded citizens of Port Huron will investigate matters in the High School, and that the plans for a new school will soon be under way.

C. E. S. '23.

Caste

In the Old World, people bow in homage to Kings, Queens, Princes, Lords and Dukes, which may be all very well for them to do; but we Americans who believe in all people being equal and "just as good as the next fellow," sometimes depart from our ideal—when we "look-up" to the rich man, the political office holder, the president of a company, and the movie actor. We even sometimes aspire to attain such positions ourselves, so that we may receive the admiration of "others" and be in fact a little better than our neighbor. We thus lose sight of the real value of obtaining such a place, which should be with the idea of being of more service to the other fellow. For through service we attain that object—Happiness—which is to us as the Fountain of Yuth was to Ponce de Leon.

Is it not evident that when we do a truly worth-while deed and know that it has brought hope and comfort to someone that a glow of satisfaction and contentment rewards us for our efforts? For in truth, "Happiness is but the by-product of Service." Then we should therefore not "look-up" to those who have received the high positions as better than we are, but as ones who are in a better position to accomplish the work the world has waiting to be done.

On the other hand we very often gaze down upon those less fortunate than ourselves as ones to be pitied. But pitying people is far from sympathizing with them. Pity peers down from a higher level, but sympathy places them on the same plane with us.

Then, too, those in higher rank may not always remain where we must direct our eyes up to behold them, nor do those who are viewed as subordinate stay in such a situation. Since the upper dog of today may be the lower dog tomorrow and the lower dog, an upper dog tomorrow, it is not wise to cater to the privileged or noted nor look down upon the unfortunate or miserable. Especially is this true in this free and equal country of ours, where everyone has the same chance, or at least should have, as his neighbor. Which is just one way of saying there are no upper or lower dogs, for we are all on the same footing striving towards one object—Happiness—which can be only secured by Service to each other and God.

The Ann Arbor Times-News Trophy

O NE of the greatest honors bestowed upon Port Huron High School was that received at the convention of the Michigan Interscholastic Press Association in Ann Arbor, May 17-18-19.

Concluding the convention a banquet was given for the 250 delegates who represented 34 Michigan High Schools when the prizes for the best publications were awarded. Three silver cups were given for the best monthly magazine, weekly newspaper, and annual. Port Huron's "Student" received the prize for the best annual in the State of Michigan. The inscription upon the silver cup which is 10½ inches in height, is "The Ann Arbor Times-News Trophy awarded to the best Annual entered in the High School Publications Contest of Michigan Interscholastic Press Association."

Through the superior editing of Paul St. Denis with George Durand, Business Manager, and an efficient staff, this prize issue has brought distinction to our school. And it is the desire of the present staff which consists of Charlene Shiland as Editor-in-Chief, and Stuart Fenner, Business Manager, to keep the trophy.

One of these know-it-all Freshmen once bought a pound of sausage and gave it to his landlady to prepare.

"How shall I cook them?" she asked.

"Fry them like fish," he answered.

Next morning the landlady brought them to him and remarked: "I hope you will enjoy your breakfast, but there isn't much left in these things when they're all cleaned out."

After Hugh Ross had moved that the Senior boys should go alone to the Junior-Senior party, the President informed him that it was out of order because a matter of this kind affects the whole class. Hugh then said: Well, if we boys go alone, the girls will have to.

Horace Hill—That fellow you owe $5.00 is on the line. Milton Teur—Tell him we had the phone taken out.

He called her honey because she had the hives.
